17 Kristin Hendrix and yourself.	17 do an accounts payable run every week at the
18 Do you see that, sir?	18 end of every Friday. But looking at this date,
19 A. Ido.	19 it is Wednesday, November 25th, which means, to
Q. And do you see where Ms. Hendrix	20 me, it is likely Thanksgiving weekend.
21 writes: NPA.	21 So this is the day before
22 Do you know what NPA stood for?	22 Thanksgiving, so this is the last kind of –
23 A. Yes.	23 kind of day before the holidays and vacation
24 Q. And what does it stand for?	24 and things of that nature. So it is25 effectively the Friday of that week.
25 A. NexPoint Advisors.	25 effectively the Friday of that week.

5 deposition of James Dondero in the matter	5 MR. MORRIS: All right. I would
6 In Re: Highland Capital Management, L.P.	6 like to just begin here. We have counsel
7 Today's date is October 29, 2021. The time	7 on the line for all of the defendants, we
8 on the video monitor is 10:21 a.m.	8 have counsel for the plaintiff, and we have
9 Will the court reporter please swear	9 counsel for the Highland Litigation Trust,
10 in the witness.	and I think that that is everybody who
11 JAMES DONDERO,	11 is – is supposed to be here, so I would
12 having been first duly sworn, testified as	12 like to just begin.
13 follows:	13 EXAMINATION
14 MR. MORRIS: Deborah, would you like	14 BY MR. MORRIS:
15 to make a statement?	15 Q. Mr. Dondero, can you hear me okay?
16 MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: I didn't know if	16 A. Yes.
17 you wanted appearances first. Sure. This	17 Q. Okay. And are you feeling well
18 is Deborah Deitsch-Perez from Stinson. I'm	18 enough to begin today's deposition?
19 counsel for Mr. Dondero, Nancy Dondero,	19 A. Yes.
20 HCRE and HCMS in this deposition.	20 Q. Okay. I understand that you are not
21 I want to apologize for everybody	21 feeling well. And I want you to know that I do
22 that we're starting late. Mr. Dondero was	22 not want to proceed with this deposition unless
23 under the weather. It is – he has taken	23 you believe that you are physically and
24 something, so he should not have to leave	24 mentally able to participate to the best of
25 the deposition, but if at any point he	25 your ability. Okay? Do you understand that?
1 / 1
Page 290 1 DONDERO - 10/29/21	Page 29' 1 DONDERO - 10/29/21
2 A. Yes.	2 Q. And we are going to refer to that
3 Q. So if at any time you don't feel	3 entity and that entity only today as Highland;
4 like you can continue, I would rather adjourn	4 is that okay?
5 to one day next week to complete the deposition	5 A. Yes.
6 rather than forcing you to do something that	6 Q. When did you found – when did you
7 you don't believe you're capable of doing.	7 create Highland?
8 Okay?	8 A. '94.
9 A. Yes. Yes. I did throw up twice	9 Q. And did you serve as Highland's
10 last night.	10 president from 1994 until on or around January
11 Q. Okay.	11 9th, 2020?
12 A. I imagine we could go for – let's	12 A. Yes.
13 shoot for four hours today, you know, maybe –	13 Q. Did – can you describe in your own
14 maybe five, I don't know, but if we don't	14 words what the business of Highland was while
15 finish –	15 you were president?
16 Q. I don't want to –	16 A. We were largely below investment
17 A. – we will do the rest next week.	17 grade, credit strap, and we diversified over
18 Q. Okay. I don't want to put an	18 the years to become more of an alternative
19 arbitrary time on it. You tell me if you are	19 asset manager in a variety of formats.
20 unable to continue. Okay? Is that fair?	20 Q. And –

3 Q. Okay. Mr. Dondero, at its peak,	3 A. Yes.
4 what is the – the largest value of assets that	4 Q. And you manage money on behalf of
5 Highland had under management while you were	5 thousands of people; isn't that right?
6 president?	6 A. Yes.
7 A. 35 billion.	7 Q. And as a general matter, you know
8 Q. And do you recall what year that	8 how to read and understand balance sheets,
9 was?	9 don't you?
10 A. Not exactly.	10 A. Yes.
11 Q. Was it before the 2008 financial	11 Q. You have signed promissory –
12 crisis?	12 promissory notes before, haven't you?
13 A. Yes.	13 A. Yes.
14 Q. Okay. So you were the president of	14 Q. Is it fair to say you have signed
15 Highland for about 25 years; is that right?	15 hundreds of promissory notes during the 25-year
16 A. Yes, 25, 26, whatever.	16 period that you were the president of Highland?
17 Q. And do you consider yourself to be	17 A. No.
18 expert in the area of money management?	18 Q. Is it fair to say that you signed
19 A. Yeah, on the things that we focus	19 dozens of promissory notes during the time that
20 on.	20 you were president of Highland?
21 Q. You are a sophisticated investor;	21 A. Yeah, dozens is probably fair.
22 right?	22 Q. Okay. And is it fair to say that
23 A. Yes. I would believe I'm	23 the aggregate principal amount of the
24 categorized as such.	24 promissory notes that you signed while you were
25 Q. And you are a sophisticated money	25 president of Highland likely exceeded

Did you, in your capacity as the person in control of HCMS, ever direct or authorize any person in the world to make a payment from HCMS to Highland in satisfaction of the obligation that was due under the term note at the end of the year? A. Not that – not that I recall.	Page 371

Are you aware of any facts that support the justification or repudiation defense in Paragraph 94 other than what you have testified to so far? A. I think it is largely the prepayment aspect of it that is captured there. Q. Okay. And – and – all right. I will leave it at that. Let's go to Paragraph 95. Do you see the affirmative defense in 95 is that, quote, plaintiff's claims are barred in whole or in part by the doctrine of estoppel. Do you see that? A. Yes. Q. Do you have any facts as the 30(b)(6) witness of HCMS that concern that particular affirmative defense? A. You know, I think for both 95 and	2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23	to the extent that there was a screw-up, on the term loans. Q. What screw-up are you referring to? A. In the case of HCRE I think they used the – the two lawyers that worked at NexPoint. I don't think they used the legal staff per se. I think they – the shared services that they relied on were accounting and tax primarily. Q. Did Mark Patrick do work for HCRE while he was employed by Highland? A. Boy, I don't know. I imagine probably tax-related stuff. Q. Did HCRE ever pay Highland anything for the services that it received? MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Are you talking about cash or – MR. But at some point if it is forgiven would that be – would that be an event that would be disclosed to the auditor? A. Sure. Q. Okay. So is it fair to say that all loans that were deemed to be material to the extent they were forgiven were disclosed to the auditors? A. Yes. Q. Okay. A. But, yeah, the only caveat I would put on it is we have such limited information regarding Cornerstone and Trust Life, which is part of my agreement with the Dugaboy trustee or with the majority of class A holders. They could have been sold in secrecy, without disclosure to us, such that the notes are all forgiven at this point, but	Page 427

Q. Sure. All right. So from now on, I will try and use the word "Services" and you will know that that means Highland Management Services, Inc.; is that fair? A. Yes, okay. Q. Okay. So Services didn't make the installment payment that was due at year-end; correct? A. Yes. Q. Okay. And I just want to make sure that I have this right. Is it — is it the corporate obligors' — those three corporate obligors' contention that one of the reasons they didn't make the payments at the end of the year is that they were relying on Highland to make the payment for them? A. Absolutely. Q. Okay. A. MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER DENYING ARBITRATION REQUEST AND RELATED RELIEF

I. Introduction and Background

The four above-referenced adversary proceedings, Adversary Proceeding Nos. 21-3003, 21-3005, 21-3006, and 21-3007, started out as what seemed like simple suits by a Chapter 11 Debtor to collect on large promissory notes owed to it (collectively, the "Note Adversary Proceedings"). The court held a hearing on November 9, 2021 ("Hearing") on various motions filed by certain defendants in the Note Adversary Proceedings. This Memorandum Opinion and Order addresses certain motions to compel arbitration and to stay these Note Adversary Proceedings while arbitration would be proceeding. ¹ For the reasons set forth below, the court will not compel arbitration or stay these Note Adversary Proceedings.

The Note Adversary Proceedings were originally brought many months ago by Plaintiff Highland Capital Management L.P., now a reorganized debtor ("Highland" or "Reorganized Debtor"), again, as simple suits on notes—that is, alleging breach of contract and seeking turnover of amounts owed from the various obligors under the notes (the "Note Obligor Defendants"). Each Note Obligor Defendant was closely related to Highland's former president, James Dondero ("Mr. Dondero),² and collectively borrowed tens of millions of dollars from Highland prepetition. The indebtedness was memorialized in a series of demand and term notes. The indebtedness represented by those notes remains unpaid.

¹ Certain defendants herein earlier filed a motion to withdraw the reference in these Note Adversary Proceedings (arguing that the claims were statutory noncore claims or that the bankruptcy court otherwise did not have Constitutional authority to enter final orders). The District Court accepted the bankruptcy court's report and recommendation that the reference should be withdrawn when these Note Adversary Proceedings are trial-ready with the bankruptcy court acting essentially in the position of a magistrate judge for the District Court prior to trial, presiding over all pretrial matters.

² In fact, Mr. Dondero personally was an obligor on three notes.

The Note Adversary Proceedings morphed, so to speak, when the Note Obligor Defendants defended the Note Adversary Proceedings by alleging that an oral agreement existed such that the underlying notes would be forgiven by Highland as compensation to Highland's former president, Mr. Dondero, if certain conditions subsequent occurred. The oral agreement was allegedly made on behalf of Highland, acting through one of its largest limited partners, Dugaboy Investment Trust ("Dugaboy"), which is a family trust of Mr. Dondero, on which the trustee is his sister Nancy Dondero ("Ms. Dondero").

When this "oral agreement" defense was articulated, this court granted Highland's request for leave to amend its original complaints in each of the Note Adversary Proceedings to allege alternative theories of liability and add Mr. Dondero, Dugaboy, and Ms. Dondero as additional defendants on new counts—the theories being that, if such an oral agreement was made, it may have given rise other causes of action on the part of the actors involved. Highland amended its complaints in each of the Note Adversary Proceedings, adding new Counts III, IV, V, VI, and VII alleging, among other things, fraudulent transfers (Counts III and IV), declaratory judgment as to certain provisions of Highland's limited partnership agreement (Count V), breach of fiduciary duty (Count VI), and aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duty (Count VII) (the "Amended Complaints").

Presently before the court are a set of virtually identical motions filed by Mr. Dondero, Dugaboy, and Ms. Dondero in each of the four Note Adversary Proceedings seeking to compel arbitration as to Counts V, VI, and VII of, and stay litigation altogether in, the Note Adversary Proceedings, pending the arbitration of Counts V, VI, and VII (the Motion to Compel Arbitration and Stay Litigation [Doc. 85, 66, 74, and 65, respectively, in each sequentially-numbered Note Adversary Proceeding⁴], the "Arbitration Motions"). Highland timely filed objections to the motions [Doc. 92, 76, 81, and 77] and replies were filed by Mr. Dondero, Dugaboy and Ms. Dondero [Doc. 107, 88, 93, and 88].⁵

As set forth below, Mr. Dondero, Dugaboy, and Ms. Dondero (hereinafter the "Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants") rely on a mandatory arbitration clause in Highland's Limited Partnership Agreement as the basis for their arbitration request. To be clear, there are no arbitration clauses in the underlying promissory notes. And the Note Obligor Defendants are not seeking arbitration of the breach of contract claims, turnover claims, or fraudulent transfer claims. It is only the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants seeking arbitration as to Count V (seeking declaratory judgment as to provisions of the Highland limited partnership agreement) and Counts VI and VII (the fiduciary duty claims). The court denies the Arbitration Motions for the reasons stated below.

II. The Agreement Containing the Arbitration Clause

First, a word about what is and is not in dispute regarding the Arbitration Motions. The parties agree that Highland's Fourth Amended and Restated Agreement of Limited Partnership (the "LPA")⁶ contained Section 6.14, a typical mandatory arbitration provision that requires parties to the LPA to arbitrate certain disputes under certain circumstances (the "Arbitration Clause"):

In the event there is an unresolved legal dispute between the parties and/or any of their respective officers, directors, partners, employees, agents, affiliates or other representatives that involves legal rights or remedies arising from this Agreement, the parties agree to submit their dispute to binding arbitration under the authority of the Federal Arbitration Act ...

The Arbitration Clause also significantly limited discovery that could occur in arbitration:

The discovery process shall be limited to the following: Each side shall be permitted no more than (i) two party depositions of six hours each, each deposition to be taken pursuant to the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure; (ii) one non-party deposition of six hours; (iii) twenty-five interrogatories; (iv) twenty-five requests for admissions; (v) ten request for production (in response, the producing party shall not be obligated to produce in excess of 5,000 total pages of documents, including electronic documents); and (vi) one request for disclosure pursuant to the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure.

The parties further agree that the LPA, as an executory contract, was rejected under 11 U.S.C. § 365 in connection with the court's order confirming Highland's plan of reorganization in February 2021.

The Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants acknowledge that Counts I–IV of the Amended Complaints (Breach of Contract; Turnover; Fraudulent Transfers under 11 U.S.C. § 548; and Fraudulent Transfers under 11 U.S.C. § 544 and the Texas Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act) are not subject to the Arbitration Clause.

The Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants argue in the Arbitration Motions, however, that Counts V, VI, and VII of the Amended Complaints (seeking a declaratory judgment as to provisions of LPA and claiming breach of fiduciary duty and aiding and abetting of breach of fiduciary duty—

⁶ The LPA was executed by Highland's then-general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc., through the individual James Dondero, who was also then Highland's CEO and Highland's majority limited partner, The Dugaboy Investment Trust, James Dondero's family trust, through its trustee, the individual Nancy Dondero, James Dondero's sister. (Various other limited partners also signed the LPA, but they are not Note Obligor Defendants.) The "oral a greement" defense alleges that The Dugaboy Investment Trust, through Nancy Dondero as trustee, as the holder of a Majority Interest (as defined in the LPA), entered into oral a greements on behalf of Highland with James Dondero to forgive the demand notes at the center of these Note Adversary Proceedings if certain conditions subsequent were met.

all counts that, notably, Highland only added after the Note Obligor Defendants articulated their "oral agreement" defense) are subject to the Arbitration Clause. Highland counters that: (a) the rejection of the LPA excuses Highland from being forced to submit to mandatory arbitration of Counts V, VI, and VII; (b) the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants have waived the Arbitration Clause by not invoking it at any earlier point in these Note Adversary Proceedings; and (c) the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants should be judicially estopped from invoking the Arbitration Clause now. Highland also argues that arbitration of some but not all the counts of the Amended Complaints would be inefficient and wasteful, and that any stay of proceedings in this court would do a disservice to the resolution of the admittedly non-arbitrable issues in Counts I–IV.

III. The Significance of the Rejection of the Executory Contract (i.e., the LPA) that Contained the Arbitration Clause

The court acknowledges that there is a wealth of federal case law dictating the strong federal policy undergirding the Federal Arbitration Act ("FAA"). See, e.g., Moses H. Cone Mem'l Hosp. v. Mercury Const. Corp., 460 U.S. 1, 24, 103 S. Ct. 927, 74 L. Ed. 2d 765 (1983) (describing the FAA as "a congressional declaration of a liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements"). The FAA was enacted by Congress in 1925 and became effective in 1926. It is codified at Title 9 of the United States Code and is predicated upon Congress's exercise of the Commerce Clause powers granted in the Constitution. The FAA contemplates the judiciary's respect for and enforcement of private parties' agreements to resolve disputes through arbitration. The FAA provides:

A written provision in ... a contract ... to settle by arbitration a controversy thereafter arising out of such contract ... shall be valid, irrevocable, and enforceable, save upon such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract."⁷

Thus, arbitration, pursuant to the FAA, is entirely a matter of contract. And, where a contract contains a provision in which parties agreed to submit future disputes thereunder to arbitration, these provisions should be enforced according to their terms. Section 4 of the FAA specifically directs a court to order parties to arbitrate upon a request by a party that is entitled to demand arbitration in a written contract. The courts have often stated that the FAA reflects a liberal federal policy favoring arbitration and requires arbitration agreements to be rigorously enforced according to their terms. ⁸

The court also notes that some courts have grappled with whether a bankruptcy court needs to treat an arbitration provision in a contract any "less mandatory" than other courts. After all, bankruptcy cases are not like other lawsuits; they are multi-faceted, multi-party, and fast-moving. It has often been stated that the underlying purposes of the Bankruptcy Code are to: (a) provide debtors and creditors with orderly and effective administration of bankruptcy estates; and (b) centralize disputes over debtors' assets and obligations in one forum. But there is no "bankruptcy exception" to an arbitration agreement per se—not in any statute and not according to any court so far. Some courts have opined or suggested that a bankruptcy court, when presiding over a proceeding involving "non-core" disputes pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)—i.e., disputes that are merely related to a bankruptcy case and would have been litigated elsewhere but for the broad nexus created by the debtor's bankruptcy filing—generally must abstain from adjudication and direct the parties to arbitration when presented with an applicable arbitration provision. 9 But when a bankruptcy court is presented with a "core" dispute—i.e., one which derives from the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code—it may be permissible for the bankruptcy court to decline to order arbitration; after determining that "core" disputes are involved, courts tend to employ a framework for analysis derived from a nonbankruptcy Supreme Court case called Shearson/Am. Express, Inc. v. McMahon, 482 U.S. 220 (1987). In a nutshell, the McMahon Court held that a party seeking to avoid arbitration pursuant to an otherwise applicable agreement must show that Congress—in enacting whatever statute is involved (i.e., the Bankruptcy Code) intended to preclude arbitration and that intent must be deducible from: (1) the statute's text; (2) its legislative history; or (3) "an inherent conflict between arbitration and the statute's underlying purposes." 10 Thus, courts—after finding "core" disputes are involved—tend to plow down a complicated trail of considering whether there is an "inherent conflict" between arbitration and the Bankruptcy Code in whatever dispute happens to be before the court.

The Fifth Circuit has addressed the topic of enforceability of arbitration clauses in bankruptcy in the cases of In re Gandy and In re Nat'l Gypsum. ¹¹ In those cases, the Fifth Circuit instructed that a bankruptcy court may refuse to enforce arbitration clauses and may itself adjudicate a dispute when it finds that: (a) a matter is core or derives from rights under the Bankruptcy Code; and (b) enforcement of the arbitration provision would irreconcilably conflict with the purposes or goals of the Bankruptcy Code. ¹²

While this is all somewhat enlightening, a slightly different argument is presented to this court by Highland in its argument that the bankruptcy court should not compel arbitration. Highland does not deny the existence of any of the above case law nor the fact that Counts V, VI, and VII involve non-core matters that do not derive from rights under the Bankruptcy Code. Rather, Highland argues, these Note Adversary Proceedings present a circumstance that very few courts have addressed. The LPA (or at least the Arbitration Clause) was an executory contract that Highland rejected in its confirmed Chapter 11 plan. As noted above, no one disputes that the LPA was rejected pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 365. The result, argues Highland, is

Highland's argument finds support in a both lengthy and well-reasoned opinion by District Judge David Godbey of this District — Janvey v. Alguire, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 193394 (N.D. Tex. Jul. 20, 2014), aff'd on different grounds at 847 F.3d 231 (5th Cir. 2017), dealing with federal receiverships (in which the court made analogies to the bankruptcy process)—as well as in an old law review article written by renowned University of Texas Law School Professor Jay Westbrook (often considered the modern-day expert on executory contracts in bankruptcy). See Jay Westbrook, The Coming Encounter: International Arbitration and Bankruptcy, 67 UNIV. OF MINN. LAW SCHOOL 595 (1983).

The Janvey opinion arose in the context of a federal receivership commenced at the request of the Securities and Exchange Commission in response to the massive R. Allen Stanford Ponzi scheme. Ralph S. Janvey was the receiver ("Receiver") who took possession of all receivership assets and records. Pursuant to those powers, the Receiver filed suit against former employees (the "Employee Defendants") who previously worked in various capacities for the Stanford enterprises ("Stanford Entities") and received salary, commissions, bonuses, or later forgiven loans from the Stanford Entities. The Receiver's suit alleged that the Employee Defendants received fraudulent transfers in violation of the Texas Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (TUFTA) or, in the alternative, were unjustly enriched at the expense of the creditors of the Receivership Estate. Some of the Employee Defendants filed motions to compel arbitration. According to a later Fifth Circuit opinion, the arbitration agreements were contained in: (1) promissory notes between the Employee Defendants and the company that governed the upfront loan payments that the company awarded to the Employee Defendants when they joined Stanford; (2) the broker-dealer forms that the company submitted to the Financial Industry Regulation Authority (FINRA) when registering the Employee Defendants as brokers; (3) FINRA's internal rules governing disputes between brokers and their employers; and (4) the company's Performance Appreciation Rights plan. arbitration clauses provided that "any controversy arising out of or relating to this Note, or default on this Note, shall be submitted to and settled by arbitration pursuant to the constitution, bylaws, rules and regulations of the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD)." Janvey v. Alguire, 847 F.3d 231, 237 (5th Cir. 2017).

The issue of whether arbitration was required went back and forth between Judge Godbey and the Fifth Circuit and, ultimately, the precise issue pending before Judge Godbey was whether to deny or grant the motions to compel arbitration based on the question of "whether the Receiver is bound by the arbitration clauses if he sues, as he must, on behalf of the Stanford Entities."

Judge Godbey declined to order arbitration because the Receiver had not adopted the arbitration agreements at issue and because arbitration of the Receiver's claims would frustrate a central purpose of federal equity receiverships. Judge Godbey noted that, before a general requirement to arbitrate exists, a party must first be bound to an arbitration agreement — either as a signatory or through a principle of law or equity. Judge Godbey stated that discussions of possible exceptions to this general requirement to arbitrate, like McMahon's contrary congressional command, are only necessary after such an initial determination. Judge Godbey opined that equity receivers, as non-signatories to an arbitration agreement, can, in fact, be bound to the arbitration agreement to the same extent receivership entities would be bound. But there remained a significant resultant question: whether the Employee Defendants' arbitration agreements were contracts that the Receiver could reject, "an ability that has deep historical roots for both federal equity receivers and bankruptcy trustees and that continues to be an important tool for both."

Applying Professor Vern Countryman's material breach test, Judge Godbey concluded that arbitration agreements must be analyzed as separate executory contracts, based on the nature of the agreement as well as arbitration caselaw regarding severability. Citing Professor Westbrook, he noted that, "[v]iewed as an independent contractual obligation of the parties, an arbitration agreement is a classic executory contract, since neither side has substantially performed the arbitration agreement at the time enforcement is sought." Westbrook, supra note 26, at 623 (footnote omitted). Furthermore, the appropriate remedy in this circumstance cannot be for the Court to require specific performance by the trustee — i.e., to compel arbitration — because 'injured part[ies] cannot insist on specific performance by the trustee.' See id. at 619 (collecting cases)." Janvey, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 193394 at *113.

Judge Godbey went on to opine that the Receiver had rejected the arbitration agreement, that the rejection was proper, and that the Receiver was not bound to arbitrate—further noting that if the court required the Receiver to adopt the arbitration agreements, it would greatly burden and deplete the receivership estate. Such a result, weighed in the balance, would be unjust and inequitable.

The Fifth Circuit ultimately affirmed, 847 F.3d 231 (5th Cir. 2017), but applied a different analysis. It determined that the Stanford entity in whose shoes the Receiver had stepped, for purposes of bringing the TUFTA claims (i.e., Stanford International Bank), was not a signatory to the arbitration agreements and was not otherwise bound by them. The Fifth Circuit also determined that, with regard to one Employee Defendant (Giusti) who stood in a unique position (in that there was an arbitration agreement that the Receiver's predecessor was party to and bound), that Guisti waived the right to arbitrate by substantially invoking the judicial process (through the filing of a motion to dismiss, an answer, serving written discovery and answering discovery—which had caused delay and expense). As for Judge Godbey's "broader policy argument" that the federal receivership statutes were at odds with the FAA's mandate in favor of arbitration, noting that these were "important concerns," the Fifth Circuit stated that "we are wary of endorsing these broad policy arguments in the absence of specific direction from the Supreme Court." Id. at 245. But the Fifth Circuit did not otherwise address the arguments.

While the Janvey case involved a federal receiver, Judge Godbey looked almost entirely to bankruptcy law and to Bankruptcy Code section 365 to reach his ruling. This court finds Janvey to be persuasive (and possibly binding) on this court. Moreover, just as a federal receiver is analogous to a bankruptcy trustee, a debtor-in-possession is, of course, statutorily the same as a bankruptcy trustee. See, e.g., 11 U.S.C. § 1107.

To be clear, if a bankruptcy trustee rejects an executory contract, the rejection, of course, constitutes a breach of the contract and subjects the estate to a claim for money damages on behalf of the injured party. 11 U.S.C. § 365(g). Significantly, however, the injured party cannot insist on specific performance by the trustee. See Westbrook, The Coming Encounter, at 619 (and numerous cases cited therein). Instead, the injured party is treated as having a prepetition claim for damages arising as if the breach occurred immediately before the filing of the bankruptcy petition. Professor Westbrook notes that the issue then becomes whether such a prepetition claim, including a claim arising from rejection, must be liquidated pursuant to the arbitration clause. Most jurisprudence in the bankruptcy context dealing with arbitration clauses does not analyze this as a traditional executory contract conundrum. And yet, to use Professor Westbrook's words, an arbitration agreement is a classic executory contract, since neither side has substantially performed the arbitration agreement at the time enforcement is sought. Id. at 623. And although "arbitration survives the contract" as a matter of contract law, "executory obligations may be avoided by the trustee as a matter of bankruptcy law through the exercise of the trustee's power to reject executory contracts." Id. "If specific performance is not available against a trustee, it follows that an arbitration agreement is like any other executory contract which the trustee may reject." Id. at 624.

The Janvey decision is not the only case to have addressed the effect of rejection on the viability of an arbitration clause within a rejected executory contract. The Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants cite the court to In re Fleming Companies, Inc., 325 B.R. 687 (Bankr. D. Del. 2005), a case from another bankruptcy court that predates Janvey by almost a decade, for the proposition that rejection of an executory contract does not prevent a party from invoking an arbitration clause in that contract. With due respect, the court believes the reasoning in Janvey to be more persuasive than the bankruptcy court's in Fleming Cos. (and Janvey is potentially binding precedent on this court). It also bears noting that it was the debtor in Fleming Cos., not the executory contract's counterparty, who was invoking the arbitration clause in the contract the debtor had previously rejected. That distinction is not without significance.

In summary, this court accepts Highland's argument that the LPA was an executory contract duly rejected pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 365, and that the Arbitration Clause should likewise be considered a separate executory agreement that was rejected. Accordingly, Highland cannot be forced to specifically perform under the Arbitration Clause or the LPA by mandatorily participating in arbitration of Counts V, VI, and VII. The court defers to the compelling reasoning of Judge Godbey in Janvey on this point. The court, like Judge Godbey, also finds as a matter of fact that requiring arbitration in this case would impose undue and unwarranted burdens and expenses on the parties to the detriment of Highland's creditors.

IV. Waiver

Even if this court is in error in determining that the Arbitration Clause is no longer binding on Highland because it was rejected pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 365, the court finds as a matter fact that the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants have waived any right to invoke the Arbitration Clause. The court has taken judicial notice of its own docket, both in these Note Adversary Proceedings and in the administrative Chapter 11 case, and has considered the entire record of both proceedings, as well as the Declaration of John A. Morris in Support of Debtor's Objection to Motion to Compel Arbitration and Stay Litigation [Doc. 94, 78, 83, and 78], and the exhibits annexed thereto, in making the following findings of fact.

The Note Adversary Proceedings were filed in January 2021 (after Highland earlier made demands on the Note Obligor Defendants or otherwise declared events of default). One of the Note Obligor Defendants (Mr. Dondero) timely answered, pleading an affirmative defense that Highland agreed not collect on the underlying notes—but that answer contained nothing more specific than this, nor any mention of arbitration. Amended Answers were later filed by the Note Obligor Defendants, elaborating on and/or adopting the affirmative defense that, through the oral agreement, Highland agreed to forgive the obligations under the notes as compensation to Mr. Dondero "upon fulfillment of conditions precedent." Roughly 90 days after the filing of the Note Adversary Proceedings, the Note Obligor Defendants filed motions to withdraw the reference, which this court spent significant time addressing in making a report and recommendation to the District Court in each Note Adversary Proceeding. No mention of arbitration was made to this court during those proceedings. During a hearing before the court on June 10, 2021, Highland announced its intention to add claims against the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants for breach of fiduciary duty, yet the issue of arbitration was not raised at that point, or a month later when the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants received a draft of the Amended Complaint adding Counts V, VI, and VII. Pursuant to the parties' agreement, Highland filed that Amended Complaint on August 27, 2021, as the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants' "oral agreement" defense became clearer. Only on September 1, 2021, did the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants file their Arbitration Motions and raise the issue of arbitration under the Arbitration Clause for the first time in these proceedings, more than seven months after the litigation began. At the same time, the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants also pursued extensive discovery, seeking and obtaining responses to interrogatories and documents requests in scope and number significantly more than the Arbitration Clause permitted, all in accordance with pre-trial stipulations the defendants both negotiated with Highland and then asked this court to approve, which the court did.

Although courts in the Fifth Circuit sometimes apply a presumption against waiver of an arbitration right, the right can certainly be waived. ¹³ "Waiver will be found when the party seeking arbitration substantially invokes the judicial process to the detriment or prejudice of the other party." ¹⁴ In this context, prejudice "refers to the inherent unfairness—in terms of delay, expense, or damage to a party's legal position—that occurs when the party's opponent forces it to litigate an issue and later seeks to arbitrate that same issue." ¹⁵ A party waives arbitration when it "engage[s] in some overtact in court that evinces a desire to resolve the arbitrable dispute through litigation rather than arbitration." ¹⁶

While every situation is unique, here the court finds that the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants waived their right (if any still remained) to demand arbitration, due to their multiple answers, their motions to withdraw the reference, extensive discovery that far exceeded what the Arbitration Clause permitted, and complete silence about the possibility of arbitration for more than eight months. Even though Counts V, VI, and VII were not added by Highland until more than seven months after the Note Adversary Proceedings were filed, the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants had reason to know that their "oral agreement" affirmative defense might implicate the LPA and the Arbitration Clause, and yet they didn't raise the subject of arbitration until many months of litigation activity in the Note Adversary Proceedings had occurred in this court. ¹⁷ The resulting delay and expense warrant this court's applying waiver as permitted by the Fifth Circuit authority cited above. This court finds as a matter of fact that the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants waived the relief they seek in the Arbitration Motions.

V. Judicial Estoppel, Waste and Inefficiency

Highland also asked the court: (a) to judicially estop the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants from arguing entitlement to arbitration in light of prior contradictory positions these defendants took in earlier pleadings and arguments before this court, and (b) to decline to order arbitration because of the waste and inefficiency arbitration would represent for these proceedings. Because the court rules that rejection of the Arbitration Clause precludes Highland's being forced to submit to arbitration, and because the court finds that the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants waived the relief they sought in the Arbitration Motions, the court need not and does not address Highland's arguments pertaining to judicial estoppel or the practical implications of ordering arbitration.

VI. Stay of Counts I-IV

Finally, because the court denies the arbitration requested in the Arbitration Motions, there is no good cause to stay litigation in the entire Note Adversary Proceedings. Even if the court has erred in its ruling on the Arbitration Motions, there still exists no good cause to stay the Note Adversary Proceeding as to Counts I-IV. The Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants acknowledge that Counts I-IV are non-arbitrable claims and, moreover, in the event Plaintiff were to prevail on them, it is likely that Plaintiff would not even pursue Counts V–VII. To clarify, if Plaintiff prevails on Counts I and II (i.e., the breach of contract claims and turnover)—which would involve a finding that there was no oral agreement for nonpayment—then all other counts would become moot. And, if the court were to find that there were such an agreement, Plaintiff could potentially still prevail on Counts III and IV (the claims that such an agreement would constitute a fraudulent transfer—also non-arbitrabal). It would seem that only if Plaintiff loses on all of these non-arbitrable claims would it have any interest in pursuing Counts V-VII (i.e., an interest in arguing that the oral agreements amounted to breach of fiduciary duty and aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duty).

^{1156, 1162 (5}th Cir. 1986) (party waived arbitration because it "initiated extensive discovery, answered twice, filed motions to dismiss and for summary judgment, filed and obtained two extensions of pre-trial deadlines, all without demanding arbitration").

¹⁷ The court notes that all Note Obligor Defendants consist of either Mr. Dondero or entities he controls.

The requested stay would also be illogical in this context. The "oral agreement" defense relies on the existence of an oral contract between Highland (via Dugaboy, through its trustee, Ms. Dondero) and Mr. Dondero. The existence of that contract is not an arbitrable issue. The implications of that contract's existence are what would potentially be arbitrable. If litigation on Counts I–IV demonstrates that there was no such "oral agreement," then there would be nothing to arbitrate because Counts V–VII would be rendered moot. Staying the litigated determination regarding the existence of the "oral agreement" in favor of arbitrating issues that only arise if there ever were such an agreement strikes the court as backwards. Arbitration should await that determination, not the other way around.

Accordingly, the Dondero/Dugaboy Defendants' requests to stay the Note Adversary Proceedings have no merit and are denied.

ORDER

For the reasons stated in the above Memorandum Opinion and Order, the Arbitration Motions and Stay Motions related thereto are DENIED.

REPLY OF DEFENDANT NEXPOINT ADVISORS, L.P. IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO EXTEND EXPERT DISCLOSURE AND DISCOVERY DEADLINES

TO THE HONORABLE STACEY G.C. JERNIGAN, U.S. BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

COMES NOW NexPoint Advisors, L.P. ("NexPoint"), one of the defendants in the above styled and numbered Adversary Proceeding initiated by Highland Capital Management, L.P. as the plaintiff (the "Debtor"), and files this its Reply (the "Reply") in support of its Motion to Extend Expert Disclosure and Discovery Deadlines (the "Motion"), and replying to the Objection to Motion of Defendant NexPoint Advisors, L.P. to Extend Expert Disclosure and Discovery Deadlines (the "Objection"), filed by the Debtor, respectfully stating as follows:

I. SUMMARY

1. The Shared Services Agreement required the Debtor to assist and advise with payments, including on notes. That is in the contract. The Debtor's former CFO confirmed it. The Shared Services Agreement contains a standard of care that the Debtor had to follow. That is also in the contract. And the Fifth Circuit confirms that expert testimony is appropriate, and potentially required, when the standard of care is not obvious. Here, it was obvious until it wasn't. Before Mr. Waterhouse's deposition, the standard of care was not at issue per se. The Defendant simply alleged the Debtor was obligated to facilitate the December payment but did not. That came down to simple contract interpretation. No expert was needed because any lay juror could understand that the Debtor breached its duties by doing nothing to facilitate the payment. But things changed after Mr. Waterhouse's testimony in late October, when he testified that Mr. Dondero allegedly told him not to pay this note. The question then became what the Debtor was obligated to do next under the contractual standard of care. The answer is not obvious. And it is the type of issue on which a jury could only benefit from expert opinion testimony. This is precisely the type of case where the Fifth Circuit finds expert testimony appropriate, if not required. Nor is there prejudice to the Debtor: there is no trial setting, the Debtor can contest the admission of the expert's testimony and present its own rebuttal, and, if the Debtor prevails, it also can also seek to recover all collection costs.

II. THE EXPERT TESTIMONY IS APPROPRIATE

- 2. The Shared Services Agreement, in place during November and December, 2020, provides as follows:
 - Section 6.01. Standard of Care. Except as otherwise expressly provided herein, each Covered Person shall discharge its duties under this Agreement with the care, skill, prudence and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims. To the extent not inconsistent with the foregoing, each Covered Person shall follow its customary standards, policies, and procedures in performing its duties hereunder.

See Rukavina Declaration, Exh. A at § 6.01.

- 3. "Covered Person" includes the "Staff and Services Provider," i.e. the Debtor, and its managers, directors, officers, and shareholders. See id. at p 2. There can be no dispute that section 6.01 applied to the Debtor itself, to Mr. Waterhouse, and to the other employees involved (David Kloss, the controller, and Kristin Hendrix, the senior accountant).
- 4. The Debtor argues that section 6.01 applies only to duties specifically set forth in the Shared Services Agreement, and that the duty to facilitate payments on NexPoint's behalf is not among those duties. This argument is wrong. The Shared Services Agreement identifies at least three services that the Debtor was required to provide that are directly on point:
 - (a) Back- and Middle Office. Assistance and advice with respect to back- and middle-office functions including, but not limited to . . . finance and accounting, payments, operation, book keeping, cash management . . . accounts payable . . .
 - (k) Ancillary Services. Assistance and advice on all things ancillary or incidental to the foregoing.
 - (l) Other. Assistance and advice relating to such other back- and middle-office services in connection with the day-to-day business of [NexPoint] as [NexPoint] and [the Debtor] may from time to time agree.

See id. at § 2.02 (emphasis added).

5. Assistance and advice—again, advice—with respect to "payments" is expressly included. And, should there be any doubt, the Debtor's own Chief Financial Officer at the time confirmed that it was "reasonable for NexPoint to rely on the debtors' employees to inform NexPoint of an upcoming payment due on the $30 million promissory note." See Rukavina Declaration at Exh. C, 337:22-338:8. That is why NexPoint was paying millions of dollars to the Debtor, to assist and advise NexPoint with respect to NexPoint's payment obligations. Advice would include advising NexPoint of the consequences of a potential default, especially given the Debtor's conflict-of-interest at the time between being NexPoint's creditor as well as its accounting, payment, and legal professional. This is especially the case if Mr. Dondero in fact instructed Mr. Waterhouse not to make the payment on the belief that the payment was not due, or would be netted against NexPoint's overpayments to the Debtor.

6. Next, the Debtor argues that expert testimony is not proper on the scope of a party's legal duty, because that is a legal conclusion for the Court. NexPoint agrees. The Debtor also argues that whether the Debtor owed or breached a legal duty is for the jury to decide. NexPoint agrees in part: whether duties are breached is an issue for the jury; not whether duties were owed. See Askanese v. Fajto, 130 F.3d 657, 673 (5th Cir. 1997). None of these issues are present here: the Court will construe the Shared Services Agreement as a matter of law; that agreement contains section 6.01, and the Court will construe that section. But, the standard of care in that section is:

the care, skill, prudence and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims.

See Rukavina Declaration, Exh. A at § 6.01.

7. The issue is simple: if the jury finds that Mr. Dondero did in fact instruct Mr. Waterhouse not to make the payment, then did the Debtor fail to act with "the care, skill, prudence and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims" by failing to do anything to advise NexPoint as to the consequences of a default, failing to confirm that Mr. Waterhouse correctly understood the instruction, or not even trying to dissuade Mr. Dondero from his alleged instruction? As simple as this issue appears to sophisticated bankruptcy professionals, it is not one a lay juror could resolve from personal experience or common sense.

8. "Expert testimony is generally required to prove the applicable standard of care." Quijano v. United States, 325 F.3d 564, 567 (5th Cir. 2003) (emphasis added); Streber v. Hunter, 221 F.3d 701, 724 (5th Cir. 2000) ("Breach of the standard of care must generally be proven by expert testimony"). [E]xpert testimony is necessary to establish the standard of care ... Similarly, breach of a fiduciary duty or a conflict of interest requires proof of expert testimony." Geiserman v. MacDonald, 893 F.2d 787, 793-94 (5th Cir. 1990) (internal quotations removed) (emphasis added). An expert is appropriate, and potentially needed, for the jury to understand whether the Debtor employed "the care, skill, prudence and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims." That should not be a controversial proposition.

9. The Debtor cites the Fifth Circuit's opinion in Askanese v. Fajto as support for its argument. 130 F.3d 657 (5th Cir. 1997). In that opinion, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the exclusion of an expert because "[i]t is not for [the expert] to tell the trier of fact what to decide." Id. at 1997. Here, NexPoint's expert would not be telling the jury what to decide; only whether, in his opinion, the Debtor's actions and inactions breached the duties as otherwise specified in the Shared Services Agreement and construed by the Court. The Debtor would have the ability to have a rebuttal expert, and the jury would be free to disregard the expert's testimony. NexPoint's expert would not be telling the jury how to decide, only his opinion as to whether the standard of care as specified in the agreement and construed by the Court was met. Conversely, if NexPoint's lay witnesses purported to present evidence on these duties at trial, the Debtor would certainly object to any such evidence because it would not be expert testimony.

III. REPLY REGARDING "GOOD CAUSE"

A. NexPoint's Need and Good Cause for Leave

- 10. The Debtor argues that NexPoint seeks leave because the testimony of its witness, Mr. Waterhouse, allegedly did not go well. But the Debtor takes some liberties in its argument. For one thing, Mr. Waterhouse is not one of NexPoint's witnesses. In fact, the Debtor took his deposition and he is not NexPoint's witness. Also, his deposition did not go badly for NexPoint. On the contrary, other than his unexpected testimony regarding Mr. Dondero's alleged instruction not to pay the note, his testimony was not harmful to NexPoint and was, objectively, neither helpful nor harmful to either side. The Debtor makes these wrong allegations solely to shoehorn its argument into a case that it cites. See Objection at ¶ 43.
- 11. But the more pertinent objection is that, as NexPoint has always argued that the Debtor caused the alleged default, NexPoint should have retained an expert months ago: "[i]If NexPoint wanted to offer 'expert testimony' concerning Highland's duties under the SSA, it had nine months to do so, and Mr. Waterhouse's testimony, expected or not, does nothing to change that." Objection at ¶ 44. This argument is wrong as a matter of Fifth Circuit law.
- 12. Prior to Mr. Waterhouse's deposition, NexPoint did not know that Mr. Dondero allegedly instructed Mr. Waterhouse not to make the payment. NexPoint understood that the Debtor's employees simply dropped the ball on ensuring that the payment was made. Under those facts, expert testimony would not have been needed because anyone, using common sense, can determine whether the Debtor in that case breached it duties. But the situation changed when Mr. Waterhouse gave his deposition testimony because, if the jury believes that Mr. Dondero gave the instruction, now the situation is much more complicated; i.e. whether, in light of such an alleged instruction, the Debtor nevertheless breached its duties. This important distinction has been aptly explained by the Fifth Circuit in a case where the issue was whether a trustee breached his duties:

Finders of fact are supposed to reach their conclusions on the basis of common sense, common understanding and fair beliefs, grounded on evidence consisting of direct statements by witnesses or proof of circumstances from which inferences can fairly be drawn. Accordingly, we have explained that, as a general rule, expert testimony is not needed in many if not most cases. Moreover, although expert testimony may be necessary in a professional negligence case to establish the standard of care for the industry, an exception applies in instances of negligence that are a matter of common knowledge comprehensible to laymen.

Although Liberty Mutual contends that expert testimony was required in this case, Lamesa suggests that inasmuch as the Trustee failed to act in the face of obvious danger posed by Mrs. Schooler's ready access to the bankruptcy estate's assets, and in the face of repeated warnings and inquiries by a concerned creditor, a layperson could discern that the standard of care was not met in this case.

We agree with Lamesa that, under the facts of this case, expert testimony was not required to establish that the Trustee breached her duties. While the precise course of action the Trustee should have taken may be subject to reasonable debate, it requires no technical or expert knowledge to recognize that she affirmatively should have undertaken some form of action to acquire for the bankruptcy estate the assets to which it was entitled. As the bankruptcy court explained, by doing nothing, the Trustee ignored basic human nature.

In re Schooler, 725 F.3d 498, 514-15 (5th Cir. 2013) (internal citations and quotations omitted).

- Debtor breached its duties by doing nothing in light of the upcoming payment, without Mr. Dondero's alleged instruction. But if the jury finds that that instruction occurred, the situation is more complicated: did the Debtor have an affirmative duty after receiving such instruction to seek confirmation, advise as to the potential consequences of a default, or try to dissuade Mr. Dondero? These issues are not within a lay person's common knowledge or common sense. And this is all the more important because, at the same time, the Debtor was providing legal services to NexPoint; i.e. the Debtor was NexPoint's law firm.
- 14. By analogy, it is one thing for a lawyer to fail to inform his client of an upcoming deposition, which leads to a "death penalty" order. Anyone can know, using common sense, that the lawyer committed professional negligence. But what if the lawyer advises the client of the deadline, but the client tells the lawyer he does not feel like attending the deposition? Can the lawyer sit on his hands and do nothing, or must the lawyer take affirmative steps, for example, to inform the client of the potential consequences, try to reschedule the deposition, or try to dissuade the client from his decision? That is a much more difficult question. Here again:

the general rule is that expert testimony is required to establish the standard of care in a legal malpractice action; an exception to the general rule is recognized where the attorney's lack of care and skill is so evident that the jury can find negligence as a matter of common knowledge, e.g., when an attorney allows the statute of limitations to run on a client's claim.

Floyd v. Hefner, 556 F. Supp. 2d 617, 643 (S.D. Tex. 2008).

15. The Debtor's objection that the expert testimony is irrelevant is likewise wrong. NexPoint has explained above why expert testimony is appropriate, and arguably required, to address the standard of care in the Shared Services Agreement. NexPoint has likewise demonstrated that the Shared Services Agreement expressly provides for assistance and advice with respect to "payments." Here, the Debtor attempts misdirection:

NexPoint does not and cannot identify any provision in the SSA that imposes a duty on Highland to make Annual Installment payments on NexPoint's behalf without direction from an authorized NexPoint representative.

Objection at ¶ 49.

NexPoint's behalf," in the sense that the Debtor would do so from its funds. And, the issue is not whether the payment should have been made without direction from an authorized NexPoint representative—itself a disputed question of fact made much more complicated by the fact that it was the same individual responsible for the payment on both sides, who was also an officer of both parties. Even if the Debtor is correct, though, the point is that the Debtor failed in its duties to seek such authorization.

17. The Debtor also argues that, as NexPoint should always have known that Mr.

Dondero did not authorize the payment, Mr. Waterhouse's testimony that Mr. Dondero instructed him not to make the payment does not change the situation such that NexPoint's delay is unreasonable. First, the issue is not whether NexPoint instructed the Debtor to make the payment; that is merely the Debtor's interpretation of its duties under the Shared Services Agreement and the Court or the jury will have to decide whether that is correct. NexPoint does not agree that is the correct standard (and its expert has not been asked to opine on that issue). Second, the issue is the Debtor's failure to advise NexPoint on the issue—and advice is an express duty under the contract. Third, the Debtor fails to recount the whole of Mr. Dondero's testimony on the "authorization" issue:

Q. Okay. And do you know whether anybody acting on behalf of any of the three corporate obligors under the term notes ever took any steps in December 2020 to make sure that Highland would, in fact, make the payments that were due at year-end?

MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Object to the form.

No, there was a reliance on Highland. A.

Okay. Is it your testimony that Highland was authorized to make the payments under the notes at year-end without being directed by a representative of the three corporate obligors?

A. Yes. It is my contention that that is how it worked in prior years also.

Q. And so you believe that nobody on behalf of any of the corporate obligors ever authorized or directed Highland to make the payments but that Highland did it without -- without direction?

MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Object to the form.

Yes, typically. And in 2017 or 2018, 2019, for sure.

Morris Declaration Exh. 4 at: 462:24-463:25.

18. And contrary to the Debtor's characterization of Mr. Waterhouse's testimony, Mr.

Waterhouse testified as follows:

- Q. Well, what about long term loans? Was it reasonable for NexPoint to expect debtor employees to ensure that NexPoint timely paid its obligations under long-term notes?
- MR. MORRIS: Objection to the form of the question.
- MS. DANDENEAU: Objection to form.
- A. I mean, that is one of the things that the Highland personnel did provide to the advisors. Yes, we would -- we would over the years, yes, we -- we -- we did do that generally. Again, I don't remember specifically but, yes, generally we you know, we did do that.

* * *

- Q. And what role in years prior to 2020 would employees of the debtor have had with respect to NexPoint making that annual payment?
- A. We -- we -- we would have -- I keep saying "we." The team would have calculated any amounts due under that loan and other loans, as -- as standard course. We would -- since we provided treasury services to the advisors, we would inform the -- the -- we informed Mr. Dondero of any cash obligations that are forthcoming, whether we do cash projections. If, you know, any of these payments would have -- or, you know, the sum total of all of these payments, including any note payments, if there were any cash shortfalls, we would have informed Mr. Dondero of any cash shortfalls. We could adequately plan, you know, in instances like that.

Or, sorry, we -- I say "we" - I keep saying "we" -- I keep wearing my -- again, my -- my treasurer hat. But, yes, it is to -- it is to inform Mr. Dondero of the obligations of the advisors in terms of cash and obligations that are -- are upcoming and that -- and that are -- are scheduled to be paid.

* * *

- Q. And based on your experience, would it have been reasonable for NexPoint to rely on the debtors' employees to inform NexPoint of an upcoming payment due on the $30 million promissory note?
- MR. MORRIS: Objection to form of the question.
- MS. DANDENEAU: Objection to form.

A. Yes. Yes, they did. I mean, but I mean, but I don't think these -- these notes were any secret to anybody Rukavina Declaration at Exh. C: 333:14-338:8.

19. The situation was not, therefore, as the Debtor construes it; that the Debtor could sit around and do nothing until an instruction to pay was issued. On the contrary, as the Shared Services Agreement requires, it was to advise NexPoint: "to inform Mr. Dondero of the obligations of the advisors in terms of cash and obligations that are [] upcoming . . . [and] scheduled to be paid." Whatever else can be said about what happened, and whether the jury will believe Mr. Dondero or Mr. Waterhouse, one thing is clear: the course that had been followed for years was

20. On the issue of timing, NexPoint has already explained that, while it understood that Mr. Dondero instructed Mr. Waterhouse to make no further payments on the Shared Services not followed here, because the Debtor failed to inform Mr. Dondero of the upcoming alleged obligation, whether outright or because of Mr. Dondero's alleged instruction not to pay.

Agreement, Mr. Dondero never made a similar instruction regarding the Note. See Rukavina Declaration at ¶ 10. Mr. Waterhouse's counsel prevented NexPoint's counsel from discussing the matter with Mr. Waterhouse, due to ongoing litigation between the Debtor and Mr. Waterhouse.

See id. at ¶ 11. If the Court questions the truthfulness of this, the Court need only review the transcript of Mr. Waterhouse' deposition, where NexPoint's attorney asked four (4) times whether

Mr. Waterhouse was sure of the instruction, as evidence of counsel's surprise at the answer. See Rukavina Declaration a Exh. C: 390:4-392:17.

21. At the same time, it appears that the Debtor knew what Mr. Waterhouse's answer would be well ahead of time—an issue also relevant below to prejudice. On May 11, 2021, the Debtor served its amended responses to NexPoint's discovery. See Supplemental Rukavina

Declaration [filed concurrently herewith] at Exh. "A." In those, the Debtor answered the following interrogatory:

INTERROGATORY NO. 2:

If the Debtor contends that it was not responsible for causing payments to be made under the Note on NexPoint's behalf pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, explain the legal and factual basis for such contention.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 2:

The Debtor objects to Interrogatory No. 2 on the ground that it seeks a legal conclusion or legal analysis. Subject to its objection, the Shared Services Agreement did not provide that the Debtor was responsible for causing payments to be made under the Note. The Debtor further states that after the Debtor sent NexPoint the Default Letters, NexPoint did not contend that the Debtor was required to make payments under the Note on NexPoint's behalf. The Debtor's personnel caused the January Payment to be processed upon instruction from NexPoint.

See Supplemental Rukavina Declaration at Exh. "B" at p. 7.

22. Even though NexPoint asked the Debtor to explain, factually, why the Debtor was not responsible for causing payments to be made, rather than including in its answer that Mr. Dondero gave Mr. Waterhouse the alleged instruction, the Debtor merely answered (as it does now, despite the clear language of the Shard Services Agreement) that the contract did not impose this responsibility on the Debtor. Yet, the Debtor's answer to the following request for production strongly suggests that the Debtor knew of the alleged instruction, yet did not include it in the interrogatory answer:

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 1:

All Communications pursuant to which any director, officer, or employee of the Debtor was advised or instructed not to make the December Payment or to cause the December Payment to be made.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 1:

Subject to the General Objections, the Debtor is unaware of any documents responsive to Request for Production No. 1. Any Communications responsive to Request for Production No. 1 were verbal.

See id. at p. 10 (emphasis added).

23. The Debtor could and should have stated what these verbal communications were in May, 2021. Instead, NexPoint was forced to wait until Mr. Waterhouse's deposition to learn of the alleged verbal communication. Alternatively, the Debtor too did not know ahead of time how Mr. Waterhouse would answer, but then it can hardly accuse NexPoint of any delay.

B. EXPERT TESTIMONY IS RELEVANT

- 24. NexPoint has already addressed above why expert testimony is appropriate, why it may even be required, and why, both pursuant to the language of the contract and the Debtor's CFO's testimony, the Debtor had some level of duties with respect to the payment.
- 25. The Debtor argues that the agreement exculpates the Debtor for "any acts or omissions unless it is determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to 'be the result of gross negligence or to constitute fraud or willful misconduct." Objection at p. 13, n. 8. That is not true. That exculpation provision applies only to the "conduct of the business of [NexPoint]." Rukavina Declaration Exh. A at § 6.02. The payment of a note is not the "business" of NexPoint; its business is managing and advising funds and investments. Even so, if the Debtor argues otherwise, then that is a matter for the jury, and the issue is not one appropriate to the present Motion.
- 26. The Debtor's reliance on the Shared Service Agreement's indemnification provision is likewise unavailing: "an indemnity provision does not apply to claims between the parties to the agreement." Derr Constr. Co. v. Houston, 846 S.W.2d 854, 858 (Tex. App. Houston [14th Dist.] 1992). Accord In re 1701 Commerce LLC, 2014 Bankr. LEXIS 3962 at *40 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2014) ("[u]nder Texas law, indemnity agreements do not generally apply to claims between the parties to an agreement"). There is an exception if the agreement expressly provides that the indemnification applies to a claim brought by one party against the other, see In re 1701 Commerce LLC, 2014 Bankr. LEXIS at *40, but the language in the Shared Services Agreement does not so provide.

C. THE DEBTOR WILL NOT BE PREJUDICED

27. The Debtor will not suffer prejudice if the Motion is granted. If the Debtor hires a rebuttal expert and prevails at trial, then it will be entitled to the costs of that expert. The scheduling order provided for expert designations by October 29, 2021. NexPoint filed its motion on that day. The Debtor cannot credibly argue prejudice with respect to added costs when the Debtor would have incurred those costs anyway had NexPoint provided an expert report on that day. In this respect:

any additional costs incurred from an extension would not be unreasonable. Here, Plaintiffs seek an extension so they can offer an expert witness for their products liability claims. Defendants have been aware of these claims since this case's inception. Because expert witnesses are crucial for Plaintiffs' prima facie case, Defendants have known they would need to prepare rebuttal evidence since this case began on October 14, 2019. These facts do not present an instance in which a party adds an additional claim, or introduces an eleventh-hour witness, to foist additional litigation costs without warning.

Adams v. Medtronics Inc., 2021 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47246 at *12 (E.D. Tex. 2021).

28. Likewise here, the Debtor always knew of NexPoint's defense. And, as discussed above, it appears that the Debtor (but not NexPoint) knew what Mr. Waterhouse's testimony would be in May, 2021. Again, had NexPoint provided an expert report on October 29, the Debtor would have incurred whatever costs it would have incurred anyway, except that, in that instance, the Debtor would likely be moving to extend the expert deadline, since the scheduling order does not provide for a separate rebuttal expert deadline. Moreover, the Debtor will have every opportunity to contest the expert's admission at trial; the Court's approval of the Motion does not mean that the expert's testimony is admissible.

29. The Debtor's discussion of a "continuance" is irrelevant, as trial has not been set and likely will not be set for a long time given the Debtor's own desire to pursue summary judgment practice. In that respect, assuming the Court grants the Motion on December 13, 2021, and the Debtor needs one month for a rebuttal expert, and the parties need two weeks for expert depositions, that would still mean that this case would be trial ready by the end of February, 2022 thirteen (13) months after being filed. This is not unreasonable and is faster than many cases are declared trial ready. In fact, the Debtor has indicated that it will move for summary judgment by December 17, 2021, with responses due on January 17, 2022, with the Debtor's reply on January 31, 2022—a schedule the Court accepted. And, on December 7, 2021, the Debtor apparently filed motions seeking to consolidate for trial various note cases, including this one, which motion alone will likely take significant time to decide as several District Court judges are involved. In other words, this Adversary Proceeding is not going to be certified as trial ready for a few months at least. Nor would granting this Motion affect the timing of the summary judgment proceedings; whether the Debtor breached the standard of care is a question of fact outside the scope of summary judgment.

IV. PRAYER

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, NexPoint respectfully requests that the Court overrule the Debtor's objection and grant the Motion.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED this 8th day of December, 2021.

- 4. Admit that the Debtor did not cause the December Payment to be made on NexPoint's behalf.
- 5. Admit that, pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, the Debtor made a payment on the Debtor's behalf under the Note on or about December 31, 2018.
- 6. Admit that, pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, the Debtor caused a payment to be made on the Debtor's behalf under the Note on or about December 31, 2018.

7. Admit that, pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, the Debtor made a payment on the Debtor's behalf under the Note on or about December 31, 2019.

8. Admit that, pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, the Debtor caused a payment to be made on the Debtor's behalf under the Note on or about December 31, 2019.

9. Admit that, prior to the alleged default on December 31, 2020, NexPoint never defaulted under the Note.

III. INTERROGATORIES

1. If the Debtor contends that it was not responsible for making payments under the

Note on NexPoint's behalf pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, explain the legal and factual basis for such contention.

2. If the Debtor contends that it was not responsible for causing payments to be made under the Note on NexPoint's behalf pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, explain the legal and factual basis for such contention.

3. Provide the following information with respect to each payment made under the Note since its inception: (a) the date such payment was made; (b) the amount of such payment; (c)

the individuals involved in making such payment or causing such payment to be made; (d) the account from which such payment was made; and (e) the method by which such payment was made.

4. Describe in detail all steps the Debtor took, including by identifying every individual involved, to evaluate the Note, the December Payment, the January Payment, and/or the alleged default.

5. Describe in detail all steps the Debtor took, including by identifying every individual involved, to evaluate the Debtor's obligations to make a payment or cause a payment to be made under the Note on NexPoint's behalf.

6. Identify all records the Debtor kept regarding services the Debtor provided to

NexPoint under the Shared Services Agreement with respect to the Note, and indicate whether such records identify what employee(s) provided services, when such services were provided, and how much time was spent providing such services.

7. For each request for admission above that the Debtor did not unequivocally admit, explain the factual and legal basis for not doing so.

IV. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION

DEBTOR'S AMENDED RESPONSES AND OBJECTIONS TO NEXPOINT ADVISORS, L.P.'S REQUESTS FOR ADMISSIONS, INTERROGATORIES, AND REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION

Highland Capital Management, L.P., ("Plaintiff" or the "Debtor") hereby responds to Defendant's Requests for Admissions, Interrogatories, and Requests for Production to Plaintiff (the "Requests")² served by NexPoint Advisors, L.P. ("NexPoint" or "Defendant") in the above-captioned adversary proceeding (the "Adversary Proceeding"). The Debtor's amended responses and objections to the Requests (the "Amended Responses") are made pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure ("FRCP") 26, 33, and 34 as made applicable in bankruptcy cases pursuant to Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure 7026, 7033, and 7034.

GENERAL OBJECTIONS

Unless otherwise specified, the following general objections and caveats are applicable to each and every Response and are incorporated into each Response as though set forth in full:

- 1. The Responses contained herein are based upon information presently known and ascertained by the Debtor.
- 2. The Debtor objects to the Requests to the extent they seek information or documents that are protected from discovery by the attorney-client privilege, the attorney work product doctrine or any other privilege or immunity. The inadvertent disclosure or production of any document that is protected from discovery by any privilege or immunity shall not constitute a waiver of any such privilege or immunity. All references in these objections and responses to the Debtor's agreement to produce documents shall be construed to mean non-privileged documents.
- 3. The Debtor objects to the Requests to the extent they request information that is not reasonably or readily available to it, in its possession, custody or control, or is more readily available to NexPoint from another source or for which the burden of obtaining such information is not substantially greater for NexPoint than it is for the Debtor.

- 4. The Debtor objects to the Requests to the extent they call for legal conclusions and/or legal analyses.
- 5. All specific responses to the Requests are provided without waiver of, and with express reservation of (a) all objections as to competency, relevancy, materiality, and admissibility of the responses and the subject matter thereof as evidence for any purpose in any further proceedings in this matter; (b) all privileges, including the attorney-client privilege and work product doctrine; (c) the right to object to the use of such responses, or the subject matter thereof, on any ground in any further proceeding in this action; and (d) the right to object on any ground at any time to a demand or request for further responses to these or any other discovery requests or other discovery proceedings.
- 6. The Debtor objects to the Requests to the extent they seek to expand on or conflict with Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure and/or the Local Rules of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas.
- 7. The Debtor's agreement to produce documents with respect to a specific Request shall not be construed as a representation that such documents actually exist or are within Plaintiff's possession, custody or control.
- 8. These General Objections and Responses shall be deemed to be incorporated by reference into the Specific Responses and Objections set forth below.

RESPONSES TO REQUESTS FOR ADMISSIONS

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 1:

Admit that the Debtor was responsible for making payments under the Note on NexPoint's behalf pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 1:

The Debtor denies Request for Admission No. 1 on the ground that the Shared Services Agreement does not provide that the Debtor was responsible for making payments under the Note.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 2:

Admit that the Debtor was responsible for causing payments to be made under the Note on NexPoint's behalf pursuant to the Shard Services Agreement.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 2:

The Debtor denies Request for Admission No. 2 on the ground that the Shared Services Agreement does not provide that Debtor was responsible for causing payments to be made under the Note.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 3:

Admit that the Debtor did not make the December Payment on NexPoint's behalf.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 3:

Admit, providing that NexPoint did not request that any such payment be made, and providing also that when the Debtor received instruction from NexPoint to make a payment during January 2021, it did make the payment.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 4:

Admit that the Debtor did not cause the December Payment to be made on NexPoint's behalf.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 4:

Admit, providing also that when the Debtor received instruction from NexPoint to cause a payment to be made during January 2021, it did so.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 5:

Admit that, pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, the Debtor made a payment on the Debtor's behalf under the Note on or about December 31, 2018.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 5:

The Debtor admits that it made a payment on NexPoint's behalf, and at NexPoint's request and instruction, under the Note on or about December 31, 2018. The Debtor otherwise denies Request for Admission No. 5 on the grounds that the Shared Services Agreement speaks for itself and the Debtor did not make any payment on its own behalf.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 6:

Admit that, pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, the Debtor caused a payment to be made on the Debtor's behalf under the Note on or about December 31, 2018.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 6:

The Debtor admits that it caused a payment to be made on NexPoint's behalf, and at NexPoint's request and instruction, under the Note on or about December 31, 2018. The Debtor otherwise denies Request for Admission No. 6 on the grounds that the Shared Services Agreement speaks for itself and the Debtor did not make any payment on its own behalf.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 7:

Admit that, pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, the Debtor made a payment on the Debtor's behalf under the Note on or about December 31, 2019.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 7:

The Debtor admits that it made a payment on NexPoint's behalf, and at NexPoint's request and instruction, under the Note on or about December 31, 2019. The Debtor otherwise denies Request for Admission No. 7 on the grounds that the Shared Services Agreement speaks for itself and the Debtor did not make any payment on its own behalf.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 8:

Admit that, pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, the Debtor made a payment on the Debtor's behalf under the Note on or about December 31, 2019.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 8:

The Debtor admits that it caused a payment to be made on NexPoint's behalf, and at NexPoint's request and instruction, under the Note on or about December 31, 2019. The Debtor otherwise denies Request for Admission No. 8 on the grounds that the Shared Services Agreement speaks for itself and the Debtor did not make any payment on its own behalf.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 9:

Admit that, prior to the alleged default on December 31, 2020, NexPoint never defaulted under the Note.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 9:

Admit.

OBJECTIONS AND RESPONSES TO INTERROGATORIES

INTERROGATORY NO. 1:

If the Debtor contends that it was not responsible for making payments under the Note on NexPoint's behalf pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, explain the legal and factual basis for such contention.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 1:

The Debtor objects to Interrogatory No. 1 on the ground that it seeks a legal conclusion or legal analysis. Subject to its objection, the Shared Services Agreement did not require that the Debtor to make payments under the Note on NexPoint's behalf. The Debtor further states that after the Debtor sent NexPoint the Default Letters, NexPoint did not contend that the Debtor was required to make payments under the Note on NexPoint's behalf. The Debtor's personnel processed the January Payment upon instruction from NexPoint.

INTERROGATORY NO. 2:

If the Debtor contends that it was not responsible for causing payments to be made under the Note on NexPoint's behalf pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement, explain the legal and factual basis for such contention.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 2:

The Debtor objects to Interrogatory No. 2 on the ground that it seeks a legal conclusion or legal analysis. Subject to its objection, the Shared Services Agreement did not provide that the Debtor was responsible for causing payments to be made under the Note. The Debtor further states that after the Debtor sent NexPoint the Default Letters, NexPoint did not contend that the Debtor was required to make payments under the Note on NexPoint's behalf. The Debtor's personnel caused the January Payment to be processed upon instruction from NexPoint.

INTERROGATORY NO. 3:

Provide the following information with respect to each payment made under the Note since its inception: (a) the date such payment was made; (b) the amount of such payment; (c) the individuals involved in making such payment or causing such payment to be made; (d) the account from which such payment was made; and (e) the method by which such payment was made.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 3:

See Exhibit A.

INTERROGATORY NO. 4:

Describe in detail all steps the Debtor took, including by identifying every individual involved, to evaluate the Note, the December Payment, the January Payment, and/or the alleged default.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 4:

The Debtor objects to Interrogatory No. 4 on the grounds that it calls for a legal conclusion or legal analysis, is vague and ambiguous, and is overly broad and unduly burdensome. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1). Subject to its objection, the Debtor identifies the following individuals and entity in response to Interrogatory No. 4:

Jim Seery

Greg Demo

John Morris

Frank Waterhouse

Kristin Hendrix

DSI Consulting

INTERROGATORY NO. 5:

Describe in detail all steps the Debtor took, including by identifying every individual involved, to evaluate the Debtor's obligations to make a payment or cause a payment to be made under the Note on NexPoint's behalf.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 5:

The Debtor objects to Interrogatory No. 5 on the grounds that it assumes the Debtor was obligated to make payments or cause a payment to be made under the Note on NexPoint's behalf.

The Debtor further objects on the grounds that it calls for a legal conclusion or analysis, and is overly broad and unduly burdensome. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1). Subject to its objection, the Debtor identifies the following individuals and entity in response to Interrogatory No. 5:

Jim Seery

Greg Demo

John Morris

Frank Waterhouse

Kristin Hendrix

Blair Hillis

DSI Consulting

INTERROGATORY NO. 6:

Identify all records the Debtor kept regarding services the Debtor provided to NexPoint under the Shared Services Agreement with respect to the Note, and indicate whether such records identify what employee(s) provided services, when such services were provided, and how much time was spent providing such services.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 6:

The Debtor does not possess information responsive to Interrogatory No. 6.

INTERROGATORY NO. 7:

For each request for admission above that the Debtor did not unequivocally admit, explain the factual and legal basis for not doing so.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 7:

The Debtor objects to Interrogatory No. 7 on the grounds that it calls for a legal analysis or legal conclusion, and is overly broad and unduly burdensome. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1).

SPECIFIC OBJECTIONS AND RESPONSES TO DOCUMENT REQUESTS

Subject to the General Objections, the Debtor will search for and produce documents responsive to Request for Production No. 11.

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 12:

All Communications with the Committee (including, but not limited to, Communications solely between counsel for the Debtor and the Committee) related to the Note, any and all defaults under the Note, the December Payment, the January Payment, and/or the Default Letters.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 12:

Subject to the General Objections, the Debtor will search for and produce documents responsive to Request for Production No. 12.

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 13:

All ledgers, statements, and accounting records related to payments made under the Note to date.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 13:

Subject to the General Objections, the Debtor will search for and produce documents responsive to Request for Production No. 13.

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 14:

All Documents pursuant to which the Debtor was authorized and/or required to make payments or cause payments to be made on NexPoint's behalf under the Note.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 14:

The Debtor objects to Request for Production No. 14 to the extent that it assumes that the Debtor was required to make payments or cause payments to be made on NexPoint's behalf under the Note. Subject to its General and Specific Objections, the Debtor is not aware of documents otherwise responsive to Request for Production No. 14.

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 15:

All Documents and Communications pursuant to which the Debtor contends it was relieved of its obligation to make payments or cause payments to be made under the Note on NexPoint's behalf pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 15:

The Debtor objects to Request for Production No. 15 to the extent that it assumes that the Debtor was obligated to make payments or cause payments to be made on NexPoint's behalf under the Note. Subject to its General and Specific Objections, the Debtor is not aware of documents otherwise responsive to Request for Production No. 15.

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 16:

All Communications related to potentially marketing and/or selling the Note.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 16:

The Debtor objects to Request for Production No. 16 on the ground that it is not "relevant to any party's claim or defense." Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1).

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 17:

The Shared Services Agreement, including all amendments and supplements thereto, whether informal or formal, regardless of how documented.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 17:

Subject to the General Objections, the Debtor will search for and produce documents responsive to Request for Production No. 17.

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 18:

All Documents and Communications construing the Debtor's obligations to NexPoint under the Shared Services Agreement.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION NO. 18:

I. BACKGROUND AND QUALIFICATIONS

- 1. My professional background includes over thirty-six years of experience as an investment banker, corporate board member, corporate executive, hedge fund executive, attorney, consultant, and expert witness.
- 2. I graduated with honors from Georgetown University in 1982 with a BSBA in Accounting, and I graduated from The University of Texas at Austin in 1985 with a Doctor of Jurisprudence degree. I hold the Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) designation and am a licensed CPA and attorney in the State of Texas. I also hold the Series 7, 63, and 79 FINRA securities licenses¹. My CFA designation and my law, CPA, and FINRA licenses are all current.
- 3. I currently work as a corporate executive, as a corporate board member, as an investment banker, and as an expert witness.
 - a. I work on a part-time basis as the Chief Executive Officer of Harvest Oil & Gas, a former public company that is in the process of dissolving. I was Chairman of the Board of Harvest before assuming the Chief Executive Officer role. Until recently, Harvest was largely managed by another company pursuant to a services agreement. When the services agreement was entered into, the services provider and the predecessor of Harvest were affiliates, which they ceased to be during the term of the agreement. Services provided under the agreement included treasury, accounting, and operating functions. One of my roles as Chief Executive Officer is to replace the former service provider by bringing most business functions inhouse.
 - b. I currently serve on the boards of seven private companies. I am typically appointed to boards by large shareholders. In total, I have been on the boards of thirty-two public and private companies. Those companies have operated in a broad cross section of industries, including agriculture, aviation, energy, entertainment, manufacturing, real estate, refining, retail, restaurants, technology, and telecom. I have served on the boards of companies that have outsourced most of their corporate functions or provided outsourcing services for other companies.
 - c. I conduct my investment banking work through Speyside Partners, LLC ("Speyside Partners"), an entity that I co-founded.² At Speyside I work on mergers, acquisitions and divestitures, financings, and restructurings.
- 4. Through the end of 2014, I spent thirteen years working for two different hedge funds. I was the General Counsel and a partner of Carlson Capital, the most recent hedge fund for which I worked. Carlson Capital managed approximately $9 billion across a number of different funds during much of my tenure and followed a multi-strategy investing approach. Prior to working at Carlson Capital, I worked for Newcastle Capital Management, a hedge fund that pursued a deep value and activist investment strategy. I was the President of Newcastle Capital

² The website for Speyside Partners is www.speysidepartners.com.

Management and worked there for almost six years. Newcastle Capital Management managed as much as $650 million across a variety of funds while I was employed there. During my tenure, I served as the Chief Executive Officer of two companies controlled by the firm. Both Carlson Capital and Newcastle Capital Management had "shared-services" arrangements, where a separate entity provided a variety of back office, mid-office, and front office services to an affiliated party.

- 5. Prior to becoming a hedge fund executive, I was an investment banker for approximately twelve years at various large firms, including as a Managing Director for Bank of America Securities and as a Senior Managing Director for Bear Stearns. I also worked as an investment banker at Kidder Peabody, PaineWebber, and Wasserstein Perella. Over the course of my work at large investment banking firms, I focused on mergers, acquisitions, divestitures, capital raising, and restructurings.
- 6. Prior to becoming an investment banker, I was a securities and corporate lawyer for almost four years at Baker Botts.
- 7. Based on the work that I have done over the past thirty-six years, I have developed a deep understanding of services agreements and outsourcing generally as well as corporate governance-related matters. I applied the knowledge and experience that I have gained over the past thirty-six years to my analysis in this report.
- 8. I have previously served as a testifying and/or consulting witness in the following actions:
 - a. Ascent Resources Utica, LLC (f/k/a American Energy Utica, LLC); Ascent Resources, LLC (f/k/a American Energy Appalachia Holdings, LLC); Ascent Resources Utica Holdings, LLC (f/k/a American Energy Ohio Holdings, LLC); The Energy & Minerals Group Fund III, LP; EMG Fund III Offshore Holdings, LP; FR AEU Holdings, LLC and FR AE Marcellus Holdings, LLC v. Duane Morris LLP, in the 165th Judicial District Court of Harris County, Cause No. 2015-46550) Consulting and Testifying witness for Plaintiffs.
 - b. In re Paladin Energy Corp., Case No. 16-13590, in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division Consulting and Testifying witness for Debtor.

- 9. I have attached a copy of my curriculum vitae as Exhibit A to this expert report ("Report").

II. ENGAGEMENT

- 10. Highland Capital Management, L.P., is the debtor in the bankruptcy proceeding, In re: Highland Capital Management, L.P., Debtor, and is referred to herein as the "Debtor" or the "Plaintiff." I have been engaged in the matters related to the bankruptcy proceeding that are listed below (collectively referred to as the "Actions").
 - a. HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P., Plaintiff, vs. NEXPOINT ADVISORS, L.P., JAMES DONDERO, NANCY DONDERO, AND THE DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST, Defendants, Adversary Proceeding No. 21-03005, as a consulting and testifying expert witness on behalf of NexPoint Advisors, L.P. ("NexPoint"), and James Dondero ("Dondero" and NexPoint are collectively referred to as the "NexPoint Defendants").
 - b. HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P., Plaintiff, vs. HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT SERVICES, INC., JAMES DONDERO, NANCY DONDERO, AND THE DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST, Defendants, Adversary Proceeding No. 21-03006, as a consulting and testifying expert witness on behalf of Highland Capital Management Services, Inc. ("HCMS"), and Dondero (Dondero and HCMS are collectively referred to as the "HCMS Defendants").
 - c. HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P., Plaintiff, vs. HCRE PARTERS, LLC (N/K/A/ NEXPOINT REAL ESTATE PARTNERS, LLC), JAMES DONDERO, NANCY DONDERO, AND THE DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST, Defendants, Adversary Proceeding No. 21-03007, as a consulting and testifying expert witness on behalf of HCRE Partners, LLC ("HCRE"), and Dondero (Dondero and HCRE are collectively referred to as the "HCRE Defendants").
 - d. The NexPoint Defendants, the HCMS Defendants, and the HCRE Defendants are collectively referred to as the "Defendants."
- 11. The Plaintiff has made claims against the Defendants for breach of contract, turnover of property, fraudulent transfer, and breach of fiduciary duty.
- 12. My engagement is through the law firms of Munsch Hardt Kopf & Harr, P.C. ("Munsch Hardt") and Stinson LLP ("Stinson"), which are acting as counsel to the Defendants. I am being compensated for my time at the rate of $750.00 per hour. My compensation is not in any way contingent on (i) the opinions I express in this Report or any additional report, (ii) the content of any testimony I may give, or (iii) the outcome of the Action.
- 13. I have met with Dondero as well as D. J. Sauter, who is the General Counsel of NexPoint. I have also met with attorneys from counsel to the Defendants: Munsch Hardt, and Stinson.
- 14. I was asked to provide my opinion regarding whether it was appropriate for the Plaintiff to not pay the interest and principal on the Notes (as hereinafter defined) on behalf of NexPoint, HCMS and HCRE (collectively, the "Makers") by December 31, 2020.

III.BRIEF SUMMARY OF OPINIONS

- 15. I believe that the Plaintiff did not act reasonably by failing to pay amounts due on the Notes on behalf of the Makers by December 31, 2020, and otherwise in how it comported itself with respect to the Notes. Section 6.01 of the NexPoint Services Agreement (as hereinafter defined) sets forth a standard of care that the Plaintiff was supposed to comply with in paying the NexPoint Term Note; I also believe that each of the services agreements between the Plaintiff and the Makers required the Plaintiff to act in a reasonable way.
- 16. In forming my opinions and preparing this Report, I relied on all the materials listed in Exhibit B or otherwise cited herein as well as my background and personal experiences.
- 17. In offering my opinions, I am not opining on the legal enforceability of any agreements between the parties to the Actions.
- 18. I reserve the right to amend my Report should new information become available, including any assertions of the parties, witnesses, or any experts made in response to this Report.

IV. ASSUMPTIONS

- 19. The Debtor filed for bankruptcy on October 16, 2019. During the Debtor's bankruptcy, James Seery ("Seery") served as the Chief Executive Officer and/or Chief Restructuring Officer of the Debtor.
- 20. The Debtor was formerly managed by Dondero, who was the firm's co-founder and was its President until January 9, 2020, at which time he resigned all positions with the Debtor and also relinquished control of the Debtor.³ As of October 9, 2020, Dondero ceased to have any involvement as an officer or director of the Debtor.⁴ Dondero also testified that there was tension between Seery and him as well as Seery and others at Highland.⁵
- 21. During 2020, the relationship between Dondero and the Plaintiff became increasingly adversarial. For example, in addition to Dondero ceasing to have any involvement as an officer or director of the Plaintiff, there were various adversarial proceedings between the parties.⁶
- 22. NexPoint, HCMS and HCRE executed certain notes in favor of the Debtor as described below:
 - a. NexPoint executed a promissory note in the original principal amount of $30,746,812.33, and payable in thirty annual installments beginning by December 31, 2017 (the "NexPoint Term Note"). The NexPoint Note was fully payable in

Amended Complaint dated August 27, 2021 (the "NexPoint Amended Complaint"), filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. as plaintiff against defendants, NexPoint Advisors, L.P., James Dondero, Nancy Dondero, and The Dugaboy Investment Trust at 2.

- the event of default.⁸ As of December 31, 2020, $23,610,194.59 of principal remained outstanding on the NexPoint Term Note.⁹
- b. HCMS executed a term note in the original principal amount of $20,247,628.02 and payable in thirty annual installments beginning on December 31, 2017 (the "HCMS Term Note"). The HCMS Term Note was fully payable in the event of default. 11
- c. HCRE executed a term note in the original principal amount of $6,059,831.51 and payable in thirty annual installments beginning on December 31, 2017 (the "HCRE Term Note"). The HCRE Term Note was fully payable in the event of default. 13
- 23. The Debtor and the Makers were all involved in the investment management business, collectively managing billions of dollars on behalf of investors at various points over the course of their relationship with each other. At the time that the NexPoint Term Note, the HCMS Term Note, and the HCRE Term Note (collectively, the "Notes") were entered into, the Plaintiff, NexPoint, HCMS, and HCRE were all related parties as a result of overlapping equity ownership of the entities. As of December 31, 2020, NexPoint, HCMS, and HCRE ceased to have any overlapping equity ownership with the Plaintiff but continued to have overlapping ownership with each other.
- 24. The Plaintiff and NexPoint are parties to an Amended and Restated Shared Services Agreement dated January 1, 2018 (the "NexPoint Services Agreement") pursuant to which Plaintiff provided a broad array of services to NexPoint. NexPoint operated its business with a small number of employees, relying on Plaintiff's much larger workforce to provide many key services for NexPoint to run its business. The NexPoint Services Agreement details numerous areas where the Plaintiff was to provide services to NexPoint, with the Plaintiff essentially providing the entire workforce for most areas of NexPoint's business. The areas that the Plaintiff provided services to NexPoint were detailed under the following headings in the NexPoint Services Agreement: Back- and Middle-Office, Legal Compliance/Risk Analysis, Tax, Management of Clients and Accounts, Valuation, Execution and Documentation, Marketing, Reporting, Administrative Services, Ancillary Services, and Other. The NexPoint Services Agreement essentially covered all functional areas of NexPoint's business other than the executive and investment functions.

⁸ NexPoint Amended Complaint, Exhibit 3. Additionally, I am informed that there was the potential for forgiveness of the Notes in certain circumstances that had also not occurred by December 31, 2020.

¹⁴ Amended and Restated Services Agreement dated January 1, 2018, Exhibit 9 to Seery Deposition.

 $^{^{15}}$ Id. at pages 3 - 5.

- 25. The NexPoint Services Agreement contains several provisions relating to the Plaintiff's obligation to make interest and principal payments on the NexPoint Term Note, including the following:
 - a. Section 2.02(a) details various "Back and Middle Office" tasks that the Plaintiff was responsible for performing on behalf of NexPoint. Those services included "payments," which encompassed payments of interest and principal on the NexPoint Term Note.
 - b. Section 2.02 (b) provided for the Plaintiff to provide "[a]ssistance and advice with respect to legal issues...". 18
 - c. Section 6.01 describes the standard of care that the Plaintiff was supposed to provide to NexPoint.¹⁹ The provision provides that the Plaintiff "shall discharge its duties under this Agreement with the care, skill, prudence and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims."
 - d. Section 8.01 required that any amendments or modifications to the agreement were required to be in writing and signed by each party.²⁰
 - e. Section 8.07 provided that any "condition or obligation imposed upon any Party may be waived only upon the written consent of the Parties."²¹
- 26. The Plaintiff first sought to provide notice of termination of the NexPoint Services Agreement in November of 2020, however, the termination date was extended²² and the NexPoint Services Agreement was still in effect as of December 31, 2020.
- 27. While there was no written agreement between either HCMS or HCRE, on the one hand, and the Plaintiff, on the other hand, relating to services that the Plaintiff was to supply to either party, the services that the Plaintiff provided to HCMS and HCRE were essentially the same services that the Plaintiff provided to NexPoint²³ and involved a comprehensive array of services that were necessary in the day-to-day operations of the business of HCMS and HCRE. Like with NexPoint, by December 31, 2020, there was a long history of the Plaintiff having provided services to HCMS and HCRE.²⁴

28. When asked about whether the Plaintiff had a services agreement with HCMS, Dondero replied as follows during his deposition²⁵:

My answer would be the advisors like NexPoint and HFAM that had to have by law and regulatory statute have to have formal sub advisors and shared services agreements had formal shared services agreement. Entities that didn't need to have formal written shared services agreements were often serviced similarly or -- or exactly the same as those entities, but without a written agreement, but with a verbal shared services agreement providing, again, all the same similar services, and the entities that didn't have a written shared services agreement ·weren't getting shared services or support from any other entities other than Highland doing the same thing for them that it did for the mutual funds.

- 29. Dondero had a similar response with regard to there being an oral agreement for the Plaintiff to provide services to HCRE.²⁶
- 30. There was extensive testimony about the services that the Plaintiff provided to HCMS and HCRE:
 - a. Under the oral agreements to provide services to HCMS and HCRE, the Plaintiff was responsible for making payments of interest and principal on the HCMS Notes and the HCRE Notes, which had previously been made by December 31, 2017, 2018, and 2019.²⁷
 - b. HCMS and HCRE relied on the Plaintiff to provide services because HCMS and HCRE, like NexPoint, did not have the employees or infrastructure to run its business without the services provided by the Plaintiff.²⁸
 - c. According to Frank Waterhouse ("Waterhouse"), the Chief Financial Officer of the Plaintiff throughout 2020²⁹, the Plaintiff provided the same services to HCRE and HCMSS that it did for NexPoint.³⁰ He also specifically testified that Plaintiff's services included timely paying of bills and loan payments for HCMS³¹ and the same bill paying for HCRE that it did for HCMS and NexPoint.³²
- 31. Interest and principal were due on the Notes by December 31, 2020. Neither interest nor any principal payments were paid on any of the Notes by December 31, 2020. The Plaintiff was supposed to facilitate these payments even though the payments were supposed to be to itself.

- 32. On January 7, 2021, the Debtor delivered a letter to each of the Makers (the "Acceleration Letters") indicating that a default had occurred on each of the Notes and demanding the immediate full payment of "all principal, interest, and any other amounts due on the Note...". The effect of the Acceleration Letters was that millions of dollars of principal payments were suddenly due; had the Acceleration Letters not been sent, principal on the Notes would have amortized ratably through 2047.
- 33. In addition to being the Plaintiff's Chief Financial Officer, Waterhouse was also an officer of two of the three Makers as of December 31, 2020.
 - a. He was the Treasurer of NexPoint, an officer-level role, during all periods relevant to my Report. Waterhouse reported at his deposition, "I still manage the finance and accounting function for NexPoint."³⁴
 - b. He was the treasurer and acting treasurer of HCMS.³⁵
- 34. Plaintiff alleges that Dondero orally instructed Waterhouse to not pay the interest and principal on the NexPoint Term Note that was due on December 31, 2021.³⁶ No evidence has been presented that suggests that Dondero's alleged instructions for the Plaintiff to not pay interest and principal on the NexPoint Term Note was in writing. The apparent rational for the alleged instruction was that NexPoint believed that there had been substantial overcharges totaling in the millions of dollars by the Plaintiff under the NexPoint Services Agreement. The overcharges related to charges for employees who were no longer working for the Plaintiff but that were still being charged to NexPoint, which was a violation of the NexPoint Services Agreement. Furthermore, Dondero denies that he instructed Waterhouse not to pay the NexPoint Term Note.³⁷
 - a. Dondero denies that he instructed that no interest and principal be paid on the NexPoint Term Note, testifying, "There is no logical reason, nor would I have ever authorized or suggested no payment to put us...in default due to a deminimis amount of money....even if I was highly annoyed with Seery, even if we knew that Seery and Highland had overcharged NexPoint by whatever it was, 14, 16, million bucks, I would not have let a small amount cause a...breach."³⁸
 - b. Dondero also testified that the Plaintiff made the payments due on the Notes by December 31 of 2017, 2018 and 2019 without any specific authorization from any of the Makers.³⁹
- 35. No evidence was presented suggesting that Dondero, HCMS or HCRE instructed the Plaintiff not to make payments on the HCMS Term Note or the HCRE Term Note. HCMS and HCRE had a reasonable expectation that interest and principal on the HCMS Notes and HCRE Notes would be paid by December 31, 2020, given past practices and the Plaintiff's obligation to do so.

- 36. Mr. Waterhouse testified about his responsibility in connection with making the payments on the Notes that were due by December 21, 2020⁴⁰:
 - Q: Did you approve of each payment that was made against principal and interest on the notes that were given by the affiliates of Mr. Dondero?
 - A: Did I approve the payments? I approve I approve if there was cash if there was cash being repaid on a note payment, yes, I approved in the general sense of being made aware of the payment and the amount."
 - Q: And are you the person who authorized Highland's employees to effectuate those payments?

A: Yes.

- 37. No evidence has been presented of any discussions that the Plaintiff had with Dondero or any of the Makers prior to December 31, 2020, with regard to payments on the Notes other than the alleged discussion between Dondero and Waterhouse described above relating to the NexPoint Term Note. Specifically, the evidentiary record reflects that there was no follow-up by Waterhouse or anyone else at the Plaintiff confirming that it was Dondero's intent for there not to be any payments made on the NexPoint Term Note.⁴¹
 - a. A number of Plaintiff's employees knew about Dondero's alleged instructions prior to December 31, 2020, with respect to the NexPoint Term Note, yet no effort was undertaken to investigate Dondero's instructions by speaking with him or otherwise confirming what NexPoint's intent was regarding the NexPoint Term Note.
 - b. Deposition testimony by Kristin Hendrix ("Hendrix"), who was the assistant controller of the Plaintiff at the time, revealed that she knew by November 30, 2020, or December 1, 2020, that the Plaintiff was not going to pay the interest and principal on the NexPoint Term Note that was due by December 31, 2020.⁴²
 - c. Waterhouse testified that he did not follow-up with Dondero about whether NexPoint should make the payments required by December 31, 2020.⁴³
- 38. Waterhouse also testified that there had not been any instructions from anyone to the Plaintiff to not make the required payments on the HCMS Term Note or the HCRE Term Note by December 31, 2020.⁴⁴ When asked about Dondero's tone when he talked to him about the fact that the payments had not been made on the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note,

Waterhouse said that the tone was very negative and that Dondero's reaction was consistent with the fact that Dondero was surprised that the payments had not been made. 45

V. SERVICES AGREEMENTS GENERALLY

- 39. Companies seeking to conduct operations more efficiently frequently outsource various operational, accounting, treasury, and other functions to a service provider. By outsourcing such functions, the customer of the services provider can avoid costly employee and infrastructure investments that would otherwise be required to conduct the outsourced functions.
- 40. The agreement between the party receiving the services and the party providing the services is often referred to as a "services agreement," an "outsourcing agreement," or a "shared services agreement." These terms have the same meaning for purposes of this Report although the term "shared services" is often used in the context of a company sharing services with an affiliated party.
- 41. The parties to a services agreement are sometimes related and other times are completely separate with no prior business relationship.
- 42. The actual agreement that comprises the services to be provided under a services agreement varies in form. Some services agreements are comprehensive, others provide limited written direction, and still others are oral.
- 43. Smaller companies are often more likely to outsource a broad set of business functions, typically because they are growing rapidly and do not have the financial resources or time to build out various important business functions.
- 44. Virtually every company outsources some type of business function to a third-party. For example, many companies outsource limited functions such as payroll processing or IT services to various vendors. There is a distinct difference, however, between outsourcing limited functions to a vendor that provides services for many clients versus the more fulsome relationship that is embodied by the typical services agreement involving the services provider managing major aspects of a company's operational and back-office functions.
 - a. Providers of more fulsome services have additional duties relative to a provider that is responsible for limited services. Those additional duties generally emanate from the level of responsibility that the services provider takes on and the services provider's more intimate knowledge of its customer's business.
 - b. Said another way, a provider of a straightforward and often outsourced service such as payroll processing has no reason to understand the underlying business issues of its customers or the perspectives of the employees for which it processes payroll. On the other hand, a provider of more fulsome services has an intimate knowledge of the goals, objectives, and capabilities of its customers and in discharging its obligations, cannot ignore that knowledge.

- 45. In the case of services agreements that cover a fulsome set of activities for the customer, even if there is a comprehensive agreement between the parties, it is difficult to enumerate with specificity each individual task that the services provider is expected to perform. Tasks are therefore often described in broad terms as opposed to specific detail (i.e., the service provider is required to handle accounting functions for its customer as opposed to saying that a trial balance is required 15 days after month-end, or the annual audit must be completed by a specified date).
 - a. Despite the difficulty in describing each task with specificity that the services provider is required to perform, the specific tasks become apparent as the services provider performs functions on behalf of its customer. In the ordinary course, practices develop that inevitably are deemed acceptable to the services provider and its customer. Such practices are generally fully clarified within one year of the inception of the services agreement because that timeframe allows the parties to interact with each other over the course of a full accounting cycle.
 - b. Following the initial cycle of activities, those previously performed practices are often referred to as "past practices" and such past practices become an important piece in gauging whether the services provider has met it obligations in future periods. Having been affiliated with companies that are customers of services providers, I think of past practices as having virtually the same effect as a written document provided that the services agreement is not written in a way that prohibits such an interpretation.
- 46. Services agreements between related parties often present complicated issues, especially if the relationship changes between the parties during the term of the services agreement. For example, at the beginning of the term of the services agreement, two related parties might constructively work together, almost obviating the need for a detailed agreement between the parties. If there is a change in the relationship between the parties that leads to less cooperation, the original agreement may not be comprehensive enough to optimally deal with the change in circumstances.
 - a. In such situations, past practices can become an even more important factor in determining the services provider's obligations and the reasonable expectations that the customer should have if the contract language is not explicit on the point.
 - b. While the services provider and a customer that is related at the outset of an agreement may cease to be related at some point during the term of the agreement, the services provider's knowledge of the customer's business objectives does not necessarily become stale immediately upon the change in affiliate status. Consequently, any higher duty that comes about from the knowledge that the services provider has about its customer is not necessarily impacted if the affiliate status of the services provider and its customer changes.

VI. OPINIONS

- A. The Plaintiff was obligated to pay interest and principal on the NexPoint Term Note by December 31, 2021, on behalf of NexPoint. Despite the alleged instruction from Dondero that the Plaintiff should not make any payments on NexPoint's behalf, the Plaintiff's obligations to make the payments did not end. At a minimum, the Plaintiff had a duty to investigate whether the payments should have been made, which it did not do. In not making the payments on the NexPoint Term Note and not undertaking steps to further investigate whether the payments should have been made, the Plaintiff did not act reasonably.
- 47. The payment terms of the NexPoint Term Note required that interest and principal was due to the Plaintiff from NexPoint on or before December 31, 2020. It is undisputed that interest and principal were not paid on the NexPoint Term Note by the required date.
- 48. The Plaintiff was obligated to make the payment of interest and principal on behalf of NexPoint on or before December 31, 2020, under the NexPoint Services Agreement.
- 49. The Plaintiff has taken the position that the interest and principal that was due on the NexPoint Term Note by December 31, 2020, was not paid because of Dondero's alleged directive to Waterhouse to not make the payments.⁴⁶
- 50. The evidentiary record highlights several noteworthy facts:
 - a. The Plaintiff had conflicting roles because it was the payee of the NexPoint Term Note and also had the obligation to cause the payments to be made on the NexPoint Term Note. The conflicting roles were also heightened because of the increasingly adversarial role that had developed between the Plaintiff and Dondero.
 - b. The Plaintiff stood to benefit mightily if NexPoint defaulted on the payment of interest or principal, given the Plaintiff's ability to immediately accelerate the payment of the NexPoint Term Note. Without a default, some of the principal of the Notes could have been outstanding until 2047.
 - c. Waterhouse was an officer of the Plaintiff and was also an officer of NexPoint, creating a conflict beyond the conflicts that the Plaintiff had that are described above. Given his dual roles, he had knowledge of the business objectives and financial condition of NexPoint, which should have made it clear to him that NexPoint would not welcome a default on the NexPoint Term Note.
 - d. NexPoint allegedly made overpayments to the Plaintiff that Dondero wanted to be offset against the required interest and principal payments on the NexPoint Term Loan.⁴⁷ The overpayments related to workers that the Plaintiff was charging to NexPoint that no longer worked for the Plaintiff, which violated the terms of the

- NexPoint Services Agreement. There were ongoing discussions between Dondero and Seery leading up to the end of 2020 relating to the topic.
- e. There is no evidentiary record describing any effort by the Plaintiff to warn NexPoint of the implications of Dondero's alleged request for the payments on the NexPoint Term Note to not be made. For example, despite the fact that the NexPoint Services Agreement required the Plaintiff to provide NexPoint with legal services, the Plaintiff failed to provide NexPoint with legal advice that failing to pay interest and principal could result in an acceleration of the NexPoint Term Loan.
- 51. In my opinion, Dondero's alleged statement to Waterhouse that the Plaintiff should not make payments on the NexPoint Term Note on December 31, 2020, did not provide a basis for the Plaintiff to not make the payments on the Notes given its obligations to NexPoint under the NexPoint Services Agreement. Several reasons support my opinion:
 - a. There is no evidence that the Plaintiff took any reasonable steps to address the myriad of conflicts that it faced.
 - i. The Plaintiff's obligations regarding the required payments of the Notes involved the conflict-ridden task of authorizing and making a payment to itself. Additionally, the Plaintiff stood to benefit significantly by putting the NexPoint Term Note into default given that a default would allow the Plaintiff to realize the proceeds from repayment of the note far earlier than it otherwise would have; had the NexPoint Term Loan not been accelerated, it would have remained outstanding until 2047. While the evidence is silent on whether the Plaintiff was considering the repayment benefit of the NexPoint Term Loan to itself, from an appearance standpoint, the conflict was glaring.
 - ii. The Plaintiff apparently took no steps to address these conflicts either by conferring with NexPoint or Dondero. Conferring with NexPoint or Dondero would have helped in establishing that NexPoint and Dondero really did not want the Plaintiff to transfer funds to pay interest and principal on the NexPoint Term Loan.
 - iii. The Plaintiff also has presented no evidentiary record reflecting how any internal steps were taken to address the conflict. Such steps might have included conducting meetings internally with minutes to reflect discussion regarding the conflict or any efforts to seek guidance from counsel to assist with the conflict.
 - iv. According to deposition testimony by Hendrix, who was the assistant controller of the Plaintiff at the time⁴⁸, she recalled receiving a phone call from Waterhouse on either November 30, 2020, or December 1, 2020, where Waterhouse indicated that no payments would made by the Plaintiff on behalf of NexPoint.⁴⁹ Accordingly, it seems that Plaintiff decided as early November 30, 2020 or December 1, 2020, to not make the payments on the NexPoint Term Note. Given the apparent time frame of the decision to not make the payment, the Plaintiff had ample time to confirm in writing with Dondero that the payments should not be made or to otherwise take reasonable steps to ensure that a mistake was not being made and that the Plaintiff was acting reasonably.

⁴⁸ Hendrix Deposition, page 12, lines 4-7.

- b. The Plaintiff had an obligation to act reasonably in discharging its obligations to make the payments on the NexPoint Term Note on behalf of NexPoint. In addition to not properly addressing conflicts as set forth above, the evidentiary record further reflects that the Plaintiff did not act reasonably.
 - i. No effort was undertaken to inform Dondero that the Plaintiff disagreed with his assumption that there were offsets to the required interest and principal payment requirements on the NexPoint Term Note. Absent any communication from the Plaintiff, Dondero simply had no way of knowing that the Plaintiff disagreed with his perspective that a right of offset did exist, so it was reasonable for him to think that discussion of an offset was on the table.
 - ii. Waterhouse had worked for or with Dondero for many years, making him very familiar with Dondero's management style. Dondero is a decisionmaker who is willing and does change his mind when presented with new facts, something that Waterhouse should have been aware of yet did nothing to address.
 - iii. Given the massive implications of a default of the NexPoint Term Loan to NexPoint, which the Plaintiff should have understood given the robust services that it was providing to NexPoint and the dual financial responsibilities that Waterhouse had to both organizations, the Plaintiff should have acted more responsibly by engaging with NexPoint and Dondero to confirm NexPoint's intent.
 - iv. The NexPoint Services Agreement provides that the Plaintiff was supposed to provide NexPoint with legal advice. In effect, the Plaintiff was NexPoint's law firm. Had the Plaintiff met its commitment, it would have had its internal counsel consult with NexPoint to point out the legal ramifications of the interest and principal payments not being made. There is no evidence suggesting that the Plaintiff took any steps to meet its obligation to provide legal advice as required under the NexPoint Services Agreement.
- c. Waterhouse had a conflict separate from the conflicts that the Plaintiff otherwise had given that he was an officer of both the Plaintiff and the NexPoint. Among other things, Waterhouse's officer role for NexPoint must have provided him with insights into NexPoint's business objectives, which could not have included any appetite for having the Notes accelerated. Yet there is no evidence that Waterhouse's knowledge was utilized in Plaintiff's decision making regarding the required payments of the Notes. It is inapposite to argue that because Waterhouse had knowledge about NexPoint from a source other than the Plaintiff, that he was entitled to ignore that knowledge. In discharging its duties under the NexPoint Services Agreement, the Plaintiff should have been using all information that it had available in its work on behalf of NexPoint.

- d. The NexPoint Services Agreement provided that any amendment to the agreement needed to be in writing⁵⁰ and any consent to a change in the agreement needed to be in writing.⁵¹ No such effort to comply with the writing requirement was undertaken and highlights the fact that any oral statement by Dondero regarding the NexPoint Term Loan not being paid was insufficient under the express terms of the NexPoint Services Agreement.
- e. Section 6.01 of the NexPoint Services Agreement also describes the standard of care that the Plaintiff was supposed to provide to NexPoint in the discharge of its obligations under the agreement.⁵² The provision provides that the Plaintiff "shall discharge its duties under this Agreement with the care, skill, prudence and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims." For reasons already described herein, the Plaintiff did not discharge its duties with such care.
- 52. For the foregoing reasons, any alleged default under the NexPoint Term Note was the result of the Plaintiff's own negligence and misconduct, which underscores that Plaintiff did not act reasonably in the discharge of its obligations to NexPoint.
 - B. Based on the oral agreement that the Plaintiff had with HCMS and HCRE and consistent with the services that the Plaintiff had previously provided, HCMS and HCRE had a reasonable expectation that the Plaintiff would continue paying interest and principal on behalf of those entities absent explicit direction to the contrary. As there was no directive from anyone affiliated with HCMS or HCRE to relieve the Plaintiff of that responsibility, the Plaintiff did not act reasonably by not meeting its obligations to make payments of interest and principal on behalf of HCMS and HCRE.
- 53. While the services agreements between Plaintiff, on the one hand, and HCMS and HCRE, on the other hand, were oral, the existence of an oral services agreement between affiliated parties involved in the investment management business is common and is something that I have regularly observed.

⁵⁰ Amended Services Agreement, Section 8.01.

⁵¹ Id. at Section 8.07.

⁵² Id. at Section 6.01.

- 54. Like with NexPoint, the Plaintiff provided HCMS and HCRE with a comprehensive array of services that were necessary to the day-to-day operation of their businesses. There was a lengthy history of the Plaintiff providing HCMS and HCRE with such services. The broad array of services provided by the Plaintiff to NexPoint were the same as the scope of work performed by the Plaintiff for HCMS and HCRE.
- 55. The evidentiary record highlights several noteworthy facts:
 - a. The evidentiary record reflects that the Plaintiff historically made payments on behalf of the HCMS Term Note and HCRE Term Note in addition to providing an array of other critical services to HCMS and HCRE not dissimilar from many of the services that the Plaintiff provided to NexPoint under the NexPoint Services Agreement.⁵³
 - b. No evidence has been presented suggesting that there was any communication from HCMS, HCRE, or Dondero suggesting that the payments on the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note should not continue.
 - c. No evidence has been presented suggesting that on payment dates in years prior to 2020 HCMS or HCRE had to notify the Plaintiff that it wanted the Plaintiff to make the required payments on the HCMS Term Note or the HCRE Term Note. Accordingly, it would not have been reasonable for the Plaintiff to expect that HCMS or HCRE were required to take any affirmative steps to have payments made on their notes.
 - d. The Plaintiff had conflicting roles because it was the payee of the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note and also had the obligation to cause the payments to be made of those notes. The conflicting roles were also heightened because of the increasingly adversarial role that had developed between the Plaintiff and Dondero.
 - e. The Plaintiff stood to benefit mightily if HCMS and HCRE defaulted on the payment of interest or principal, given the Plaintiff's ability to immediately accelerate the payment of those notes. Without a default, some of the principal of the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note could have been outstanding until 2047.
 - f. Waterhouse was an officer of the Plaintiff and was also an officer of HCMS, creating a conflict beyond the conflicts that the Plaintiff had that are described above. Given Waterhouse's dual roles, he had knowledge of HCMS's business objectives and financial condition, which should have alerted him that HCMS would not welcome a default on the HCMS Term Note.

⁵³ See, e.g., Dondero Deposition, Volume 2, pages 335:19 to 336:13; page 381, lines 10-23.

- g. The Plaintiff made no effort to warn HCMS or HCRE of the implications of the Plaintiff not making payments on the HCMS Term Note or HCRE Term Note by December 31, 2020.
- 56. Dondero testified about the payments that were required on the HCMS Term Note by December 31, 2020, indicating that there was an expectation by HCMS that the payments were going to be made, regardless of whether there were specific instructions by HCMS to do so:⁵⁴
 - Q: Okay. Do you know whether anybody acting on behalf of HCMS ever instructed or authorized Highland to make a payment on account of HCMS's term note to Highland?
 - A. Well, again, and maybe I didn't say it clearly enough. I think there was a reliance in the due course aspect, especially on small amounts, and it would have been done by Highland personnel on behalf of Services.

* * * * *

- Q. And I'm going to ask you, Mr. Dondero, to be patient with me and to listen carefully to my question. Are you aware of anybody acting on behalf of HCMS, whoever instructed Highland to make a payment in satisfaction of any payment that was due at the year-end of 2020 under the term note?
- A. Not specifically, but I'm saying I don't think it needed to be made specifically.
- 57. The Plaintiff was required to act reasonably in the performance of its obligations to HCMS and HCRE given the record of past practices and the precedent created by similar work done by the Plaintiff for NexPoint. With respect to the payments required under the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note by the Plaintiff, HCMS and HCRE had a reasonable expectation that they would continue receiving such payment services absent a clear termination by Plaintiff of its obligations to HCMS and HCRE. Given that there is no evidence suggesting that any of the parties had terminated the Plaintiff's obligations to provide services to HCMS and HCRE as of December 31, 2020, especially given that the Plaintiff continued to perform other services on behalf of those entities as of such date, the Plaintiff did not act reasonably by not making the payments on the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note by December 31, 2021. Likewise, it was also not reasonable for the Plaintiff to not discuss with HCMS and HCRE that payments were not going to be made on the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note given that payments had been made in prior years without any request by HCMS or HCRE.
- 58. Hendrix testified that the instruction to her not to make the NexPoint Term Loan payment by December 31, 2020, did not apply to the payments required on the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note by December 31, 2020.⁵⁵ She also testified that she made no attempt or effort to determine whether Dondero wanted the payments required on the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note to be paid by December 31, 2020.⁵⁶ Finally, Hendrix made no attempt to check with anyone whether the payments should be made.⁵⁷ Hendrix's testimony underscores that Plaintiff did not act reasonably in discharging its obligations to HCMS and HCRE.

59. For the foregoing reasons, any alleged default under the HCMS Term Note and the HCRE Term Note was the result of the Plaintiff's own negligence and misconduct, which underscores that Plaintiff did not act reasonably in the discharge of its obligations to HCMS and HCRE.

VII. CONCLUSION

60. In summary, based on the evidence that I have reviewed and relied upon, as well as my training and experience, it is my opinion that the Plaintiff did not act reasonably in choosing not to pay the interest and principal due under the Notes. As a result of Plaintiff's failures to act reasonably, it should not have accelerated payment of the principal amount of the Notes.

THE COURT: I will now take up the Highland three motions to extend expert deadlines. So let me get appearances from lawyers. First, who do we have appearing for the Debtor this morning?

MS. WINOGRAD: Good morning, Your Honor. My name is Hayley Winograd of Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones appearing on behalf of Highland.

THE COURT: Okay. Good morning. For NexPoint Advisors, who do we have appearing?

MR. RUKAVINA: Your Honor, good morning. Davor Rukavina and Julian Vasek.

THE COURT: Good morning. All right. For HCMS and NPRE, who do we have appearing?

(No response.)

THE COURT: Okay. Maybe I should say these names in full.

MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: I apologize, Your Honor. This is Deborah Deitsch-Perez. I believe Michael Aigen will be appearing for HCRE and HCMS. And I wonder if he's having technical difficulties. I saw him on the line a few minutes ago. I'm going to go off and call to make sure that there isn't a problem.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. RUKAVINA: But Your Honor, I'll be handling the bulk of the arguments, and Mr. Aigen will cover a much smaller amount.

> THE COURT: Okay. Well, we'll --

MR. AIGEN: Your Honor, this is Michael Aigen. Are you able to hear me now?

THE COURT: I can hear you now.

MR. AIGEN: I apologize. Michael Aigen for HCMS and HCRE.

THE COURT: All right. I presume those are our only formal appearances, but is there anyone else who wished to appear?

(No response.)

THE COURT: All right. Well, Mr. Rukavina, I'll hear your argument.

MR. RUKAVINA: Thank you, Your Honor.

I'm sure that the Court has read our papers, and by this motion we seek to extend the expert deadline so that we can retain Steven Pully as our expert on the standard of care. Mr. Pully is on the video. I can see him right now. So, good morning, Mr. Pully.

And Your Honor, I'd like for you to be aware that Friday evening I did file on the docket Mr. Pully's report. Obviously, the Court hasn't granted this motion, but I wanted the Court to know that we moved as rapidly as possible, and Mr. Pully has now finalized his report. So there's no future need for additional time on my end if the Court grants this motion.

Your Honor, before I get to the actual merits of this motion, I feel it important to address a hearing that occurred a few weeks ago that I was not present at because this motion was discussed briefly at the end. This was a hearing held on Ms. Deitsch-Perez's motion to dismiss and compel arbitration.

And Mr. Vasek, if you could please pull up the transcript of that and scroll down to near the end where this motion is discussed.

Your Honor will maybe recall that we have the transcript where Ms. Deitsch-Perez mentioned as a scheduling matter that this motion had been filed. And the Court says, What on earth does that have to do with this litigation? I don't mean to be flippant and laugh, but what on earth does that have to do with notes?

And if we scroll down some more, Your Honor, Ms. Deitsch-Perez was attempting to explain to the Court the purpose of this motion, and the Court notes that, It sounds like you're talking about an affirmative defense that hasn't been articulated yet.

And if we scroll down some more, Ms. Deitsch-Perez attempts to tell the Court that, in fact, this is an affirmative defense that has always been asserted.

And the Court notes there in her dialogue with Ms.

Deitsch-Perez that, I'm just letting you know you have a very uphill battle convincing me that experts regarding shared services agreements would be germane.

And the Court goes on to say that it has heard a lot about shared services agreements during the past few years, including experts on the witness stand in the Acis case. And the Court notes that, Under the pleadings as now in the record, I just can't imagine why experts on shared services agreements are going to be relevant evidence.

I think, Mr. Vasek, you can pull that down.

And I point this out only because, again, I know that the Court has prepared for this hearing, but this is an affirmative defense that has always been pled from the beginning. It does not involve the interpretation of the contract. We're not talking about the shared services agreement. We're not talking about the contract. And recall, Your Honor, that both Your Honor and the District Courts have agreed that jury rights do attach here. So the question really is not the Court's familiarity with shared services agreements but whether expert testimony will be relevant to help the jury.

So, what is that expert evidence, Your Honor, and how did this arise? NexPoint is the obligor, the maker on a $30 million note -- I'm using round numbers -- and that note had been paid down to some $24 million.

The note purports to require a payment every year on December the 31st. And in the year 2020, although we argued that the payment was prepaid, that payment was not made It was made a couple weeks later, when Mr. Dondero realized what had happened.

Our version, NexPoint's version of why this payment did not happen has until recently been that the Debtor dropped the ball. Under the shared services agreement, and as Mr. Dondero and Mr. Frank Waterhouse, the Debtor's former CFO, confirmed, the Debtor was for years responsible to facilitate the annual payment. The Debtor didn't pay from its own funds. It would pay it from our funds. But that was both in the contract and that was the practice. Again, Mr. Waterhouse -- and Your Honor has seen in my papers and in his transcript -- confirmed that it was reasonable for NexPoint to rely on the Debtor to ensure that this payment would be made.

So Mr. Vasek, if we can pull up the shared services agreement here.

I know that the Court likes to look at contracts, so I will briefly take Your Honor through some of the pertinent provisions, because this relates to directly to Mr. Pully.

And Mr. Vasek, if you'll please scroll down to the definitions of Covered Person.

And Your Honor can read it for herself. This is just a definitional that we need as we go forward. But Covered Person means the staff and services provider. That is Highland. That is the Debtor. And it includes managers, members, employees, et cetera. Well, that would be Mr. Frank Waterhouse. Mr. Waterhouse at that time was the Debtor' chief financial officer, and he was also an officer of NexPoint. So he, like many people here, wore two hats.

Mr. David Klos at that time was the controller for Highland, and Ms. Kristin Hendrix was a senior accountant at Highland. Both Mr. Klos and Ms. Hendrix were providing the services we're going to discuss.

If you'll scroll down, Mr. Vasek.

1.5

The next provision, Your Honor, relates to what services were being provided.

Scroll up just a -- just a tad.

So you'll see under Section 2.02 the parties are now agreeing here's the services that Highland will be provided. And it's important to note, Your Honor, that at this time this agreement was in place. This agreement was terminated I want to say at the end of February this year. But in December and November of 2020, this agreement was in place.

And if the Court looks at the services being provided, the first one there is assistance and advice. That word "advice" is important. Assistance and advice with respect to various things. And you see down there those things include finance and accounting, payments, bookkeeping, cash management, cash forecasting, accounts payable, et cetera.

Keep scrolling down, Mr. Vasek. Obviously, as the Court very well knows, the Debtor was also providing legal services.

And if you keep scrolling down, Mr. Vasek, to the next page, there you go, to K and L.

These are more catch-all. So if the language of what I just showed you is not express or specific enough, here you have these catch-alls, such as advice on all things ancillary or incidental to the foregoing and advice relating to other back- and middle-office services in connection with the day-to-day business.

So, again, we're not here today, we're not asking the Court to decide, nor do I think that it would be this Court to decide, whether the Debtor had a duty to facilitate the December payment. I'm just pointing out that we have, I think anyone would agree, at least a prima facie colorable argument that the Debtor would have such duty.

And just to address an issue that the Debtor raised, Mr. Vasek, if you'll scroll down to 6.01, and then if you'll zoom in.

Here, now, Your Honor, is the language that is of relevance, the direct relevance. So we've seen that Covered Person is defined, and we have seen that -- and we can now see that this agreement requires Covered Person -- that includes the Debtor; that includes Mr. Waterhouse; that includes Mr.

Klos -- to discharge its duties under this agreement. We've seen that there's certainly a colorable argument that the duties under this agreement include facilitating payments and advice with payments and accounts payable and the like, and that the Debtor has to discharge its duties with the care, skill, prudence, and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims.

That, Your Honor, is what we need the expert on. Not to tell the jury what this contract says, not to tell the jury that the Debtor had a duty, but to look at, under the facts, did the Debtor's performance or lack thereof -- and I'll tell you why that's important in a moment -- did that performance or lack thereof comport with this standard of care?

This is a matter for an expert. The average juror, the average layperson, myself, I would not know what the care, skill, prudence, and diligence of a reasonable prudent person in this situation would be. I can theorize on that. I can opine on that. I'm not an expert on that. This is a matter for an expert, the same as with medical malpractice, legal malpractice, breach of fiduciary duty.

While we're on this agreement, just to address another argument that the Debtor makes, the Debtor says that this agreement exculpates negligence.

Mr. Vasek, if you'll please scroll down to the exculpation.

And there is an exculpation provision. But if Your Honor

-- and it does exculpate negligence. It doesn't exculpate gross negligence, et cetera. But it talks about that only acts or omissions -- it's Romanette (i) -- acts or omissions arising out of or in connection with the conduct of the business of the management company that is exculpated. Again, we're not here today to decide what this means, but the business of NexPoint is not note-making; the business of NexPoint is advising thousands of investors and funds with respect to a billion dollars of investments.

It is -- the Debtor does have an argument, and either the Court or the jury will have to decide whether this exculpation provision applies. And then if -- and you can remove this, Mr. Vasek -- the Debtor likewise says that the agreement's indemnification provision prohibits this argument. We pointed out in our briefing, Your Honor, that, in fact, indemnification under Texas law does not apply to the parties to the contract. It applies to claims made by third parties. But, again, that's an argument that the Debtor has.

So we have this contract in place. Late November/early December rolls around, and both Mr. Dondero and Mr. Waterhouse testify that they had a meeting. What was said at that meeting is in dispute.

Mr. Dondero believes that he told Mr. Waterhouse, stop paying on the shared services agreement. It's NexPoint's position -- Your Honor knows we filed an administrative claim -- it's NexPoint's position that it had overpaid millions of dollars under the shared services agreement, in part because many of the employees of the Debtor that we were supposed to be paying our respective share of weren't there anymore. So Mr. Dondero says to Mr. Waterhouse, stop paying on this shared services agreement.

Those are the facts as we knew them going into late October. Based on that fact, and based on the fact that the Debtor did not facilitate the payment, we've always asserted as an affirmative defense that our lender, who is also our lawyer, who's also our accountant, who's also our treasury management people, and who have always facilitated these payments in the past, dropped the ball. They committed simple negligence, they dropped the ball, thereby causing the alleged default.

We did not need an expert opinion on that at that time.

You've seen in my reply briefing, Your Honor, that, in fact,

the Fifth Circuit holds in multiple instances that when it's simply a matter of missing a deadline -- a lawyer missing limitations, if you will -- expert testimony is not required, and in fact may be inappropriate because a lay person can

just simply didn't do something, whether that's -- whether that comports with the standard of care or not.

1.5

On October the 19th of this year, the Debtor and we deposed Mr. Waterhouse. And Mr. Waterhouse had a different testimony. He had a different recollection of that meeting. Mr. Waterhouse said that Mr. Dondero told him in late November or early December, don't make this NexPoint payment. In other words, that Mr. Dondero expressly said the payment that's coming up for NexPoint, do not make this payment.

That was news to us. I was so surprised by that testimony that I actually asked Mr. Waterhouse that question four times. And opposing counsel actually got angry at me, kept saying, how many times are you going to keep asking this question? I was surprised.

I was not able to talk to Mr. Waterhouse meaningfully before that. Mr. Waterhouse has attorneys, Mr. Waterhouse is in litigation with the Debtor, and those attorneys require that I not communicate with him directly, I communicate only through them. I never took up the chance to ask them about this meeting because the only information that I had and that my client had was that there was no such instruction. The Debtor may or may not have been surprised as well.

Mr. Vasek, if you'll please pull up discovery.

Your Honor, we're sharing with you now certain of the discovery in this case -- in particular, the Debtor's responses.

And if you'll go to Interrogatory No. 1, Mr. Vasek.

So, Your Honor obviously can read this. But I ask the Debtor, if it contends that it was not responsible for making payments under the note on NexPoint's behalf, please explain the legal and factual basis for such contention. I asked for a factual basis as well. And Your Honor can see in the response that the Debtor objects, the Debtor says that it was not required to make the payment, but nowhere here does the Debtor say that it had received an instruction not to make the payment.

Pardon me, Your Honor.

This was, I believe, from May or June. In any event, it was early in this litigation. Nowhere here am I put on any kind of notice that it's the Debtor's position that it received an instruction not to make the payment.

If we scroll down to Request for Production, I believe it's No. 1, Mr. Vasek.

Here, we -- I ask for all communications pursuant to which the Debtor was advised or instructed not to make the payment or to cause the payment to be made. And the Debtor's answer includes the following: Any communications responsive to Request for Production No. 1 were verbal.

Okay. I had to await depositions. That's fine. I had asked in an interrogatory, I didn't get a factual response, and then I'm now being told that any communications were verbal.

Now, the Debtor may not have known about Mr. Waterhouse's instruction, it may not have, in which case I don't think it's fair to accuse NexPoint or its counsel of dropping the ball. Or the Debtor may have known of the instruction, in which case the Debtor should have answered Interrogatory No. 1 factually by saying, oh, wait, not only were we not required to make the payment, et cetera, et cetera, but we received an instruction from your boss, NexPoint, not to make the payment.

You can remove that.

So, here we go into October 19th. We depose Mr.

Waterhouse. We now see that, in fact, I guess it's -- I forget who -- who the author is, but the plot has thickened.

The situation is now much more complicated. Whereas previously we argued that the Debtor had dropped the ball, the question now is, okay, if in fact the jury believes that Mr.

Dondero went to Mr. Waterhouse and said, don't make this payment, did that discharge the Debtor's duties as specified by the contract or not?

It's our belief that it did not. It's our belief that Mr. Waterhouse should have, at a minimum, asked Mr. Dondero after that, did I get you right, Jim? Did I understand correctly? Did you mean not to make this payment? It's our belief that the Debtor -- our legal advisers, our accountants, people that are supposed to advise us -- should have called back and said, Jim, you know that if you don't make this payment you're going to have a note accelerated and it's going to be $24 million. They should have advised Mr. Dondero of the potential consequences, especially given their clear conflict of interest.

At the same time, they're our lender to the tune of $24 million, and they're providing us all this assistance and advice that we're paying millions and millions of dollars for.

And then also, if Mr. Dondero gave such an instruction, did the Debtor have some duty to try to dissuade him by saying, Jim, you're being a hothead, this is a very serious matter, it's only $1.4 million, make the payment? In fact, we did make the payment in January, after this issue was learned about. But the Debtor didn't do any of those things.

So, again, the question now is, did the Debtor's lack of any subsequent follow-up -- putting its head in the sand, so to speak -- did that comport with the duties as specified, what would a reasonable person discharging his or her duties under the facts and circumstances in that industry then in place, what should or would have such a reasonable person done? That's where Mr. Pully comes in.

I deposed Mr. Seery a few days after this deposition and I asked him about this, and Mr. Seery said that no, in his view, Mr. Waterhouse acted perfectly appropriately, that Mr.

Waterhouse had no duty to seek clarification or explain the ramifications or anything else. And it was clear to me that Mr. Seery is going to testify to that effect.

So at that point in time, now that we knew Mr.

Waterhouse's testimony, we decided that it is not only advisable but perhaps necessary to retain an expert. And we moved very quickly. I have had the fortune of working with Mr. Pully before, so I knew him. I was able to rapidly retain him because of our prior familiarity with each other. Mr.
Pully reviewed all the transcripts. He reviewed the discovery. He prepared a full and final report. So, from beginning to end, we were done in maybe five weeks, maybe six weeks.

And we're not proposing, Your Honor, that the Debtor doesn't have whatever time it needs to prepare a rebuttal.

We're not proposing that the Debtor can't depose Mr. Seery [sic]. Of course it can.

So where this adversary proceeding now is is that discovery is over. The Debtor will be filing by December the 17th a motion for summary judgment. Your Honor will recall that Your Honor approved a scheduling order on that. And there will be hearings before this Court on summary judgment, and perhaps opposing counsel can remind me, but it's going to be in late January, or I'm going by memory here, maybe early February.

So that is, Your Honor, what happened. That is how it happened. It's the truth. It's -- there's no laying behind the log here. There's no litigation decisions that are now backfiring and we're trying to get out of them. What happened here is exactly what should happen in a lawsuit like this, where discovery has illuminated various issues and now we have to deal with the consequences of that discovery as we prepare for trial.

October the 29th was the date in the scheduling order to disclose experts and provide their reports. Mr. Pully couldn't even hypothetically do that in time since I had retained him a few days before that. But we moved very quickly to file this motion, to file it before the deadline actually expired, in hopes, again, of not -- not only of showing Your Honor that we moved diligently and rapidly when this issue unfolded, but also that we didn't need nunc protunc relief.

So, Rule 16 does apply. The good cause requirement does apply. But this is not some talismanic super-high burden to meet. Yes, there's a burden. Yes, I must demonstrate to Your Honor why leave based on good cause is required. But we're not trying to unscramble the eggs, and we're not seeking something extraordinary or exotic here.

The Fifth Circuit has specified the four factors that the Court should look at. In the Fifth Circuit cases that we've seen and that we've briefed, the deadline had already expired and the people were seeking nunc pro tunc relief. I don't think we have that high of a burden here, but even if we do, we've analyzed those four factors.

And the first factor is the explanation for the lateness. Again, did NexPoint act diligently? Did NexPoint hide behind the log? Is there some litigation strategy here that has backfired? None of that, Your Honor, is present. There's been no delay. We deposed, pursuant to agreed deposition schedules, we deposed all of the main witnesses in October. When we deposed Mr. Waterhouse, this issue arose. We moved as rapidly as we could thereafter. And you've seen, Your Honor, in the interrogatory answer, that if the Debtor knew about this instruction, then, really, the Debtor should have answered its interrogatory to say, we got an instruction not to pay and that's why we didn't pay.

Maybe the Debtor -- maybe the Debtor didn't know that.

But when we deposed Mr. Klos and Ms. Hendrix, who are still employees of the Debtor, they testified that they heard Mr.

Waterhouse tell them that in late November last year. So they -- they testified that in late November last year Frank Waterhouse told them, Jim Dondero told me, don't make this payment.

So, even if the Debtor didn't know what Mr. Waterhouse would testify to, Mr. Klos and Ms. Henderson [sic] did.

Again, I am not pointing the fingers here at the Debtor.

I'm not saying that their answer to Interrogatory No. 1 was manipulative, that it was calculated to deceive. I'm not suggesting that. I'm just suggesting that, had the Debtor given a more fulsome answer, we would have immediately investigated and immediately retained an expert back in May or June of this year.

The next element, or the next factor, rather, is the importance of this extension. And Your Honor, we have quoted at length Fifth Circuit opinions that say that when the standard of care is involved, expert opinion is appropriate and may be required.

It goes back to, again, if the Debtor just dropped the ball and didn't facilitate the payment, that's easy. That doesn't need an expert. But if the Debtor was instructed by Mr. Dondero not to make the payment and there was a month left before the payment was to be made, did the standard of care as specified in the contract require the Debtor to do something that it failed to do?

So we are talking about the standard of care. That is appropriate expert testimony. It may be required. And it is not something that I can argue to a lay juror just based on a deadline being missed.

So, yes, this -- the relief we're seeking is important, especially given the jury nature of this trial.

1.5

The third factor is the potential prejudice. So, the Debtor says, well, this will increase costs. Yes, it will. But costs alone is not the legally -- the legal standard here. Every litigation has costs. Every litigation has burdens. And if the Debtor prevails in this lawsuit, they will claim attorneys' fees and costs. They're entitled to that under the note and under Texas law.

So there will be an incremental cost for the Debtor to retain an expert, but that would have been present as of October the 29th anyway.

Remember, I filed this motion on the deadline. We're seeking six weeks of delay here. This is not late-stage litigation where all the facts are known, all the witnesses have been deposed, everyone's ready for trial, and suddenly a party seeks to increase its opponent's litigation costs here with a last-second expert. This is not that case.

So, there is no prejudice, at least not in the legally relevant way by way of costs, nor is there any prejudice by delay. And this also ties into the fourth factor, which discusses a continuance. There is no prejudice here because we're not trial-set. We don't know when we're going to be trial-set.

Even if the Court denies summary judgment in whole or in part at the end of January or early February -- which I don't think that's very realistic because I think the Court is going to want to think about it some, the Court is going to want to prepare a report and recommendation -- this is not going to be a straightforward summary judgment proceeding.

What is also out there is that the Debtor has filed a motion to consolidate all these note cases in front of one District Court judge. That's going to have to be reviewed by the District Court judges and ruled on.

So we are months, months away from being trial-ready, and then we don't know how long it's going to be before we're up for a week or two long jury trial. No one knows that. That is plenty of time for the Debtor to get a rebuttal expert. It's plenty of time for the Debtor to depose Mr. Pully. It's plenty of time for everything to come to play so that this case will be certified trial-ready, irrespective of whether there's an expert or not. This is not going to delay the process. We're not seeking to delay the process.

Nor are we seeking to derail the summary judgment proceedings. If the Debtor wants to retain an expert for summary judgment proceedings, that just proves that there is a question of fact here that precludes summary judgment.

But as far as continuance or trial-setting, that's just not present here.

And I've quoted Your Honor at length a District Court's opinion from the Eastern District of Texas that talks about prejudice, that talks about costs. And that judge basically said, look, when it's -- when it's an affirmative defense that you've known that since the beginning, which the Debtor has known here since the beginning, then, really, it's not a last-second tactic. It's not real prejudice. Yeah. Yeah, there's a delay. Yeah, there's an increased cost. But the plaintiff is now trying to fundamentally change this lawsuit, to fundamentally interject something new here. The plaintiff just needs some more time. And the question is, should the plaintiff have more time?

Your Honor, those are the factors. We have -- we have the exhibits. We have the record prepared. It's a part of the motion and the Debtor's response. And Your Honor, we ask that the Court grant this motion -- again, reminding the Court that this does relate to an affirmative defense that's been around since the beginning. It does relate to one that was -- only -- only really became the subject of expert testimony in late October. And it's only because discovery in this case worked as it should. No one laid behind the log. No one made a calculated decision that has backfired. No one delayed anything or was less than diligent.

Under these circumstances, Your Honor, because the point of a trial in front of a jury is to get to the truth and it's to enable the jury to have what it needs to make a true, full, and informed decision, we believe that good cause exists, and we'd ask -- NexPoint would ask that the Court grant this motion.

1.5

THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

I'll ask Mr. Aigen, does he have anything he wants to supplement with?

MR. AIGEN: Yes, Your Honor. I can make a very quick argument here.

As you know, HCMS and HCRE have filed a joinder, asking for the same relief. The only thing I want to quickly point out is that the only difference between our clients and Mr. Rukavina's client is the lack of a written services agreement. But I would point out, as the evidence we submitted in our briefing shows, the undisputed testimony is that there was an oral agreement to provide these services, that the Debtor did provide these same exact services that they provided from -- for NexPoint to HCMS and HCRE, that they had done this for years, and this included making loan payments.

So I just wanted to point that out, and I think what this means is that, for the same reasons that Mr. Rukavina asked for this relief, we believe we are entitled to the same relief. And I won't bother to go through all the same arguments that Mr. Rukavina just made to the Court. So that's all I have, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. Ms. Winograd?

MS. WINOGRAD: May it please the Court?

THE COURT: You may proceed.

1.5

MS. WINOGRAD: Your Honor, the motion should be denied because there is no good cause for modifying the scheduling order. The motion is untimely. The expert testimony Defendants seek to gather is both improper and irrelevant. And if the motion is granted, Highland will be prejudiced.

This is -- this adversary -- adversary proceeding is a garden-variety collection action on a simple note, it has been going on for roughly a year, and it continues to get delayed due to unnecessary and costly motion practice. Defendants' latest motion is not only another delay tactic, but it is also completely unsupported.

And before I tell you why it is unsupported, I want to take a step back and just summarize the context of Defendants' motion. Defendants have always and continue to assert the same affirmative defense, which is that their default under the note was the result of Highland's negligence under the shared services agreement. It is Defendants' position that before Mr. Waterhouse's deposition an expert was not needed to testify regarding Highland's duties under the shared services agreement.

Mr. Waterhouse then testified that Mr. Dondero gave him instruction not to make a payment under the note. It is now Defendants' contention that, solely in light of this testimony, all of a sudden an expert is needed to testify regarding whether Highland owed an affirmative duty under that same shared services agreement to ask Mr. Dondero if he understood the implications of his instruction, and if so, if Highland breached such a purported duty.

First of all, Your Honor, based on the clear terms of the shared services agreement, there is no affirmative duty for Highland to ask Mr. Dondero if he understood the implications of his own instruction.

Moreover, Your Honor, the question of what Highland's duties are is a legal issue reserved for the Court, and the issue of whether Highland breached -- and Highland submits there was no such breach -- but that issue is reserved for the jury.

Your Honor, if expert testimony wasn't needed before, it is not needed now.

This Court entered a scheduling order in September of 2021. Under Rule 16(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, an existing scheduling order can only be modified upon a showing of good cause. The purpose of Rule 16 is for the Court to prevent unforeseeable and never-ending litigation expenditures.

So the critical question before Your Honor today is whether there is good cause to modify the scheduling order. And Highland submits there is not.

Courts consider four general factors to determine whether there's good cause. It's the party's explanation for failing to previously identify the witness. It's the importance of the witness's testimony. And it's the prejudice to the other side in allowing the testimony. All of these factors weigh in favor of denying the motion.

Regarding the first factor, Defendants' explanation for failing to previously identify the witness is entirely without merit. Again, NexPoint first raised its affirmative defense that its default under the note was the result of Highland's own negligence back in March of 2021. In other words, NexPoint had nine months to retain an expert to testify regarding Highland's duties for nine months.

NexPoint seeks to create -- to distinguish between these notions of Highland somehow, quote, dropping the ball versus Highland not asking Mr. Dondero if he understood the implications of his own instruction. Defendants cite no authority in support of the notion that one of these factual circumstances would somehow require an expert but that the other would not.

What this comes down to, Your Honor, is that Defendants are using this testimony as an excuse to muddy the water, to muddy the waters as to the critical issues in this case and as a latch-ditch attempt to bolster their defense.

I don't want to bog you down with case law that's already cited in our brief, but I want to flag a particularly on-point case, and that is Reliance, 110 F.3d at 257. The Fifth Circuit affirmed the lower court's denial of a party's motion to modify the scheduling order when that -- when a deposition didn't go well, specifically holding District Courts have the power to control their dockets by refusing to give ineffective litigants a second chance to develop their case.

The suggested expert testimony also is improper as a matter of law. It is well-settled law in the Fifth Circuit that an expert cannot testify regarding the scope of a party's contractual duties under an agreement and whether that party fulfilled such duties. And that is exactly what NexPoint and Defendants are trying to do here. It is trying to have its expert interpret the terms of a shared services agreement and testify regarding Highland's duties thereunder and ultimately whether it thinks Highland breached those duties.

This is an improper subject for expert testimony and precisely the type of expert testimony that the Northern District of Texas rejected in Panhandle and which the Fifth Circuit affirmed the rejection of in Askanase, two cases cited in our papers.

Even if the suggested expert testimony were proper, which it is not, it is also irrelevant. In order to be relevant, expert testimony must assist the trier of fact understand a complex or distinct issue in a case. Here, the critical issue for Defendants is whether they can prove that their default under the note was the result of Highland's negligence. This issue is well within the common understanding of a lay person.

Again, this is a garden-variety collection action. All of the cases NexPoint cites in its papers in support of the notion that expert testimony is required, all of those cases involve professional malpractice cases, whether legal or medical. And in those cases, an expert was required to testify regarding the general standard of care in a particular industry.

Here, NexPoint doesn't seek to have an expert testify regarding the general standard of care in a particular industry. That is not an issue in this case. And this certainly is not a professional malpractice case.

NexPoint seeks to have its expert opine as to the scope of Highland's legal duties in a shared services agreement and ultimately whether Highland breached the purported duties, which, again, we submit it did not.

The other case NexPoint cites to, In re Schooler, that case also doesn't support Defendants' position, and in fact supports Highland's position. In that case, the Fifth Circuit noted, and I quote, Expert testimony is not needed in many, if not most, cases.

I also want to briefly address NexPoint's argument raised for the first time in its reply that Highland was also acting as an attorney to Defendants during this time. As a procedural matter, this argument is entirely improper because it is not proper to raise an argument for the first time in a reply.

And on the merits, again, this is not a professional malpractice case. So for these reasons alone, such a contention should be summarily disregarded by the Court.

Finally, Your Honor, Highland would suffer prejudice if the motion is granted because it would be forced to expend significant and costly resources responding to the testimony in the form of retaining a rebuttal expert, taking and defending additional depositions, and engaging in more motion practice. This would be a waste of resources for both parties and for the Court because this testimony isn't ultimately going to be needed at trial.

It is improper because it opines as to the ultimate legal issues in this case that are reserved for the Court and then for the jury. And it is also irrelevant because all of the issues in this case are well within the common understanding of a lay person.

I also want to note that HCRE and HCMS's motions asking for the same relief are equally if not more frivolous than NexPoint's because HCMS and HCRE aren't even parties to the shared services agreement. To the extent HCMS and HCRE are asking an expert to testify regarding Highland's alleged duties under an oral agreement, the terms of which are unknown, such a contention is frivolous on its face.

But even if such an alleged oral agreement exists, which it does not, this does not change the Rule 16(b) analysis. The Defendants fail to show good cause for modifying the scheduling order.

In brief, Your Honor, this motion is simply a delay tactic, the expert testimony is improper, and the motion should be denied. Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you.

All right. Movants get the last word. Mr. Rukavina, anything further?

MR. RUKAVINA: Yes, Your Honor. Most of what opposing counsel says is the topic of a Daubert issue. We're not seeking to prejudice Daubert today, and they have every ability in the future to argue that Mr. Pully's testimony should not be admissible.

Second, this is not a garden-variety case. It is not. It is a case where, again, our lender was also our officer, was providing all kinds of payment services, accounting services, and legal services. It may not be unique, it may not have never happened before, but it is not a garden-variety.

I do take issue with the notion that there has been any delay in this case. That is not correct. I just looked at the docket again to refresh my memory. We had a contested hearing on my motion to withdraw the reference that the Debtor objected to, arguing that 542 was a core matter. Your Honor rejected that argument, and Your Honor agreed with me, as did the District Court, that the reference will be withdrawn when this trial -- when this case is certified trial-ready.

So the notion that there has been delay, intentional delay by us, that this is a matter of delay, is absolutely wrong.

In fact, this lawsuit has gone on quickly. It's been handled professionally. Both sides have been cooperative, giving each other various accommodations. And I am proud, I think, of how every lawyer has handled themselves in this lawsuit. To suggest delay or intentional delay is wrong.

On the law, Your Honor, In re Schooler, I heard counsel argue that it's just illogical and wrong to argue that an expert wasn't required in one situation but now is. But that's In re Schooler, the Fifth Circuit, Your Honor, 725 F.3d 498, that I quote at length from. That's one where the trustee dropped the ball, a Chapter 7 trustee failed to give property of the estate. And that's the one where the Fifth Circuit does say, Accordingly, we have explained that, as a general rule, expert testimony is not needed in many, if not most, cases. And then the Fifth Circuit says that, It requires no technical or expert knowledge to recognize that she -- the trustee -- affirmatively should have undertaken some form of action to acquire for the bankruptcy estate the assets to which it was entitled.

But, again, this is not that case. This was that case before Mr. Waterhouse testified, and now it's not. This is not a case anymore where the debtor simply dropped the ball, as did that trustee, or as does the doctor who amputates the wrong leg, or as does the lawyer who misses a limitations deadline. This is now a case where, if the jury believes Mr. Waterhouse, the plot has thickened.

And finally, Your Honor, again, I'm not here to point fingers, but look at the Debtor's response to Interrogatory No. 1. All that the Debtor needed to say six or seven months ago to avoid this delay is that, oh, wait, we received an instruction not to pay. It would have taken ten words, one sentence, by the Debtor to fully answer an interrogatory and this motion would not have been necessary.

Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Aigen, anything further from you?

MR. AIGEN: No, nothing further, Your Honor. We just join in Mr. Rukavina's reply points.

THE COURT: All right. As I understand it, the deadline was October 29th for disclosure of experts, and the record shows that at 5:22 p.m. on October 29th the Defendants — let me double-check that. That was actually the declaration of Mr. Rukavina. No, 5:22 p.m. on the deadline, the motion of the Defendant to extend the expert disclosure and discovery deadlines was filed.

The legal authority that governs here is Rule 16(b). As everyone has acknowledged, it provides that deadlines in scheduling orders may be modified for good cause. I think the standard does apply here. While I guess a lot of the cases analyze it in terms of a request after a deadline has expired, I think a motion on the day of the deadline at 5:22 p.m. is going to be governed by Rule 16(b).

So, as the parties have argued to the Court, the Fifth Circuit has specified four factors in guiding a decision in this situation: the explanation for failure to timely move for leave to amend; the importance of the amendment; potential prejudice in allowing the amendment; and availability of a continuance to cure such prejudice.

Here, as I think everyone readily acknowledges, these Defendants have always asserted as a defense that the Debtor dropped the ball, I think was one phrase used. That, in any event, it was the fault of the Debtor that the Defendants did default on the payment of these notes. I do not think the sudden statement of Frank Waterhouse suddenly is a gamechanger that creates some new need for an expert. So, therefore, looking at the factors, I don't think the explanation here to extend the deadlines has merit.

Moreover, as far as the importance of the amendment, Factor No. 2, I think it is appropriate to look at the big picture here a little bit, even though we're not in a Daubert situation, and look at what the expert is argued to be needed for. And I do not think an expert can testify about contractual duties and attempt to interpret its provisions. That is the job of the Court, and I think it is improper subject matter for an expert.

I don't buy into any notion that this is terribly unique territory or exotic. I mean, it was a contract. Shared services agreements are not all that unique, shall we say? It's not a device that is used solely in the investment advisor fund world. It's in the corporate world generally. Courts see these in all kinds of cases. So, again, I don't think contract interpretation needs an expert here or should have an expert here.

And just because experts are sometimes -- often, I should say -- appropriate in legal malpractice or medical malpractice or other kinds of tort cases where duties might be needing of elaboration, here, the contract spells out the duties, and I just don't think any of those cases argued are applicable.

Prejudice, I do think there is potential prejudice in allowing an extension of this deadline. It will be costly, add a layer of expense and delay to this litigation, when I don't think it would be admissible at trial ultimately.

So the motions are denied.

Ms. Winograd, could you please prepare a form of order?
